Tientsin (P) — The Japanese army seized control today of the entire waterfront at Tangku, including wharves, Chinese customs offices and foreign shipping companies in preparation for the expected arrival of 35,000 troops from Japan.

Tangku is the port for Tientsin, connected by rail and water with this city in the center of the North China conflict.

Reports of the imminent arrival of Japanese reinforcements indicated four troop transports were expected Thursday.

The Kailan wharf was not immediately affected. The British warship Grimsby, which arrived this afternoon, moored alongside it. Heavily loaded trains were expected at Tientsin after midnight, further increasing Japanese concentrations here. Extensive new Japanese troop movements by rail road were reported.

Alarmed Chinese steamed from Tientsin into the foreign concessions with the first reports of today's new fighting near Peiping.

Shanghai (P) — The Chinese arsenal and barracks at Wangpinghsien burst into flames, the Domei (Japanese) news agency reported tonight, under punitive shelling by Japanese artillery.

Fighting broke out at Wangpinghsien and other positions just west of Peiping at 2:30 p. m., two and one half hours after an ultimatum demanding Chinese evacuation of the area had expired.

Fire still raged in the Chinese barracks at 6 o'clock tonight (4 a. m. C. S. T.).

A thousand Japanese troops participated in the attack against Wangpinghsien, and the city was shelled more than two hours. Peiping dispatches said the town was badly damaged and that Marco Polo bridge, 100 yards to the west, was subjected to shelling.

Japanese planes circled over Peiping at 6 p. m. and Chinese there were fearful of escalation by Japanese. "Fighting at Peiping tonight," many predicted.

Advance Under Fire

The Japanese version was that their troops were acting in retaliation for "unprovoked and intermittent Chinese firing against Japanese lines."

The Japanese artillery began its advance against Wangpinghsien under fire from Chinese field guns.

The advancing Japanese units returned the fire and after a brief exchange the Chinese guns were silenced. Chinese batteries across the Yungting river then took up the battle.

Japanese casualties were one killed and one wounded. Chinese casualties were not known.

Chinese sources said fighting also was going at Fengtai, unconfirmed Chinese reports stating that Japanese had been driven back from that point.

DIPLOMATS LEAVE

Tokio (P) — A Japanese artillery bombardment was reported today to have wrecked the towers of the walled city of Wangpinghsien, west of Peiping, shortly after an ultimatum demanding evacuation of the 23rd Chinese army had expired.

At the same time the news agency reported that families of Japanese diplomats, accredited to the general Chinese government at Peiping, China (P) — Two American women were kicked and shoved, they told the United States embassy today, by Japanese sentries on guard before the Japanese embassy.

The women were Mrs. Helen R. Jones of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Carol Lathrop of Washington, D. C.

The American embassy said it was calling attention to the attack on Japanese officials after depictions were made by the two women. Mrs. Jones related:

"We were walking toward the hotel through the embassy quarter, deciding that was safest due to martial law. We were walking in the center of the street, talking of personal affairs, and not on the sidewalk. Suddenly we were terrified by a Japanese war cry from the sentries who rose up behind sandbag barricades. At least three sentries, besides the two first visible, charged us, giving Carol a terrific shove."

"Carol burst into tears, then the sentry kicked her in the side. Meanwhile, another sentry held me fast with the flat of his bayonet."

"Finally they let us go, shoving us off roughly and giving me a final and very forceful kick from behind."

Noted Italian Inventor Dies In Rome Palace

Guglielmo Marconi, Originator of Wireless Telegraphy, Is Stricken

WON WORLD ACCLAIM

Pope Pius and Mussolini Mourn; State Funeral Set for Saturday

Rome (P) — The Marquis Guglielmo Marconi, who invented wireless telegraphy when he was only 21 years old, died unexpectedly at 3:45 a. m. today (8:45 p. m. Monday C. S. T.) at the ancient palace in downtown Rome where he lived and worked.

As the early Roman dawn came across the Alban hills, the 63-year-old conqueror of the ether died quietly of heart paralysis. His wife, the Countess Cristina Bezzi-Scali, was at his bedside. She had been called back from the seaside resort of Viareggio when he began to feel ill yesterday afternoon.

Their daughter, Elettra Elena, whose godmother is Queen Elena of Italy, remained at the resort and will not return to Rome until time for the state funeral. Today is her eighth birthday.

Premier Mussolini, whose ardent supporter Marconi had been, was notified of the death immediately. He dispatched a telegram of condolence and later went to Marconi's home in the Via Condotti and paid his respects beside the body.

Mussolini's Tribute

He approached the bed, which was lighted at the four corners by tall candles. He paused, then bent and kissed the dead man on the forehead.

The body was carried from the home in a rough wooden casket shortly after noon and taken by motor hearse to the Italian Royal academy of which Marconi was president.

Five autos followed with priests, members of the family and employees.

The body was carried into Galateia hall and placed beneath the famous painting by Raphael portraying Gaitea, the nymph of the sea, borne across the waves in a shell and surrounded by nymphs, tritons and cupids.

Marconi was dressed in the gold-embroidered uniform of the academy, a rosary clasped in his hands.

Give Fascist Salute

Several hundred people silently gave the fascist salute when the body arrived. Four liveried footmen preceded the body.

U. S. Enters Davis
Cup Final Round

Budge Drops Two Sets,
Wins Next Three
From Von Cramm

Wimbledon, Eng. (P) — In one of the most dramatic matches in Davis cup history, Don Budge, the California red-head, spotted Baron Gottfried Von Cramm two sets and beat him today 6-8, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2, 8-6 in the fifth and deciding match of the interzone finals between the United States and Germany.

Budge's victory sent the United States into the challenge round against Great Britain.

Budge, heavily favored over Von Cramm whom he beat in straight sets in the all-England finals recently, found the titled Teuton at the height of his game and had to play the tennis of his life to emerge with the victory.

Victorious over the Germans, three matches to two, the American team will face Great Britain in the challenge round starting Saturday. Americans will be heavily favored for the British will be without the services of Fred Perry, now a professional, and George Patrick Hughes, who is ill.

United Mine Workers
Act to Expel Green

Washington (P) — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, faced expulsion today from the United Mine Workers, to which he has belonged for 47 years.

The miners' international board assembled for its first meeting since last winter. It accused Green of high treason in helping the A. F. of L. battle John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Expulsion from the U. M. W. would not cost Green his federation post. He also holds an honor membership in the Musicians' union.

Commission's Brief Is Filed in Bank Action

Milwaukee (P) — George A. Arfeldt and Herbert H. Thomas, attorneys for the state banking commission in its suit against the First Wisconsin National bank for recovery of collateral posted by the defunct Liberty State bank, filed a 129-page brief today with Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka.

The commission's brief charged the loans made by the First Wisconsin to the Liberty State were "made with illegality" and violated the law and public policy.

Robert Marx, attorney for the First Wisconsin, is expected to file the defense brief in about a month.

Rosenberg Faces Federal Income Tax Evasion Trial

Appears in U. S. Court Few Hours After His Release
From Waupun

Milwaukee (P) — A few hours after he was released from Waupun prison where he served four years for violating banking laws, Isaac J. Rosenberg, former president of the defunct Liberty State bank, today faced Federal Judge F. A. Geiger on charges of income tax evasion.

He was released on $1,000 bond signed by his son, Louis.

Rosenberg was released from the state prison after serving a term in October, 1933, for falsifying bank records. He was to be arraigned today before Federal Judge F. A. Geiger on a charge of income tax evasion for which he was indicted in January, 1936, after an investigation of his bond deals with the city of Milwaukee. Income tax liens against him total $197,467.

Attired in a new brown suit and carrying a large paper-wrapped bundle of his effects, Rosenberg left the prison in cheerful mood.

Jones Proposes New
General Farm Measure

Washington (P) — Chairman Jones (D-Texas) of the house agriculture committee proposed today a new general farm bill embracing the "ever-normal" granary and crop production control features.

The bill, which Jones introduced when the house convene, would use the present soil conservation benefit payments and penalty processing taxes as machinery to effect crop control.

It would give the secretary of agriculture authority to establish a marketing quota for all producers of such products as corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco and rice. Farmers who sold more than their quota would be denied soil conservation benefit payments, which last year totaled approximately $400,000,000.

When the granary threatened to overflow, the secretary would have authority to establish processing taxes on the products of which there was an oversupply.

The tax would be as follows: cotton, 2 cents a pound; wheat, 10 cents a bushel; rice, 10 cents a bushel, and 25 cents a hundred pounds on hogs when there was an oversupply of hogs.

Marie Ziegenhagen Is
Reelected to Position

Rhineland, Wis. (P) — Oshkosh was chosen as the 1938 convention city today by delegates attending the annual meeting of three county officers' associations—the registers of deeds, clerks of circuit court and county treasurers.

R. J. Emerson, Chippewa Falls, Chippewa county clerk of court, was named president of the joint convention for next year; Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county, was reelected secretary; and William Moran, Pierce county, was elected vice president.

The county officers passed a resolution favoring the non-partisan election of all county officials before adjourning at noon today. More than 250 persons attended the two-day session here.

Conservation Group Favors 14-Day
Open Pheasant Season in 55 Counties

Madison (P) — The state conservation committee composed of county sportsmen's groups voted today for a 14-day pheasant hunting season in 55 counties starting Oct. 23.

The committee also recommended a five-day season on prairie chicken and sharp-tailed grouse in 20 counties, but voted unanimously to close the entire state against the taking of ruffed grouse.

The recommendations will form the basis of regulations to be issued soon by the state conservation department, which conducted the meeting.

Still open for consideration was the question of opening a deer season this year. Discussion on this point was deferred until tonight.

Whether the limited hunting of prairie chicken and grouse will be permitted depends upon a survey of northern forest areas.

Cables Break; 2 Men Fall 195 Feet to Death

Plunge From Smokestack
At Thilmany Mill in Kaukauna

PLAN NO INQUEST

Accident Occurs as Workmen Complete Three-Month Job

Kaukauna (P) — Less than an hour's work remained to finish the 3-month repair job on the huge smokestack of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co. sulphate mill at Kaukauna when the cable supports of a scaffold gave way and plunged two men to their death 195 feet to the ground below. The dead men are Richard Janssen, 31, Little Chute, and John J. O'Grady, 27, Chicago.

The accident occurred at 2:30 yesterday afternoon as the men were letting down the equipment at the completion of the job.

Janssen started work on the job only last Friday, and worked as a groundman until yesterday when he went aloft to help take down the scaffolding so that the foreman, O. N. Meyers, could superintend packing the equipment as it was lowered to the ground. The men were employed by the Weber Chimney company of Chicago.

Kaukauna police investigated the accident and it was announced no coroner's inquest would be held.

Cable Severs

Cause of the accident was determined to be a severed cable that encircled the stack and supported the scaffold five feet from the top of the structure. A clamp holding the end of the cable released its grip on the chimney and dropped the scaffolding. It was reported.

Sees Accident

Meyers was watching the men when the accident occurred. From his position he could see only Janssen.

"I saw the scaffold sink," he said, "and the one man toward me, I think was Janssen, stuck right to it. I saw them for about the first 60 feet of the fall, and then I turned away, so I wouldn't see the

Negroes Accused of Stabbing
Policeman are Killed in Florida

Tallahassee, Fla. (P) — Two young Negroes accused of stabbing a Tallahassee policeman were taken from the county jail—located four blocks from the state capital—early today and shot to death by a small mob of masked men.

Five placards, one of them saying "warning, this is what will happen to all Negroes that harm white people," were found at the scene of the lynching, three miles from the capital and within sight of the heavily-traveled Tallahassee-Jacksonville highway.

Persons living near the scene said they heard shots about 4 o'clock a. m.

Authorities yesterday charged the Negroes, listed as Richard Hawkins and Ernest Ponder, each about 18, with stabbing Patrolman V. F. Kelly, Sunday.

Police said both confessed, each accusing the other of the actual stabbing. The patrolman is in serious condition.

Other placards at the lynching scene when the bodies were found read:

"His last crime," "this is the beginning, who is next," "this is your warning," "Negroes remember you may be next."

24 More 'Terrorists'
Are Executed by Soviet

Moscow (P) — Execution of 24 more alleged "Trotskyist and Japanese terrorist spies and wreckers" was reported from the soviet Far East today.

The Khabarovsk, Siberia court which sentenced them to death accused them of sabotage along the Trans-Siberian railroad.

The executions raised the total of persons reported executed in soviet Russia's spy hunt in recent months to 322, most of them in the Far East.

Illinois Man Fatally
Injured in Collision

Baraboo, Wis. (P) — Charles Stocker, 67, of Forest Park, Ill., died last night of injuries suffered when his automobile and a light bakery truck driven by John S. Towne of Madison collided at the top of a hill on Highway 12 five miles south of here.

Stocker's wife, Hulda, 62, was in a hospital here with a fractured arm. A daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brezinski of Elmhurst, Ill., were treated for slight injuries.

Bank Cashier Is Wounded At Poynette; Robber Pair Flees Without Taking Cash

Poynette, Wis. (P) — Arthur Jamieson, 34, cashier of the State Bank of Poynette, frustrated a robbery of the bank today but was shot twice in the right leg by one of two quick-shooting holdup men.

Bullets also grazed the shirt of Roland Webb, 36, assistant cashier, but did not wound him. Four other persons escaped injury as the gunman directed his fire into the cage where Jamieson stood.

The cashier, taken to a Portage hospital for treatment, responded to a "holdup" order by turning the key on a cash drawer. One of the would-be robbers opened fire, but both fled without loot when the sound of the shots attracted a crowd outside.

They drove south on Highway 51 toward Madison in a dark colored sedan. Both wore overalls, blue shirts and straw hats.

Other persons in the bank at the time were John Waugh, bookkeeper, Mr. and Mrs. William Gundlach and Mrs. John Erickson.

Sheriff Harry N. Hibner of Columbia county was called. He broadcast a description of the robbers and their automobile.

Witnesses said one of the holdup men was tall and the other short. They entered the bank together. The tall man leaped on a four-foot counter and shouted: "This is a holdup."

He began shooting immediately, the witnesses said, at Jamieson and Webb, who were behind the counter. After firing four or five shots, the gunman jumped from the counter and he and his companion ran from the building.

The Bank of Poynette is under supervision of the state banking department.

Several weeks ago the Rio branch of the Rio-Fall River bank was held up by two men who escaped with about $1,000.

New York Police
Start Search for
Slayer of Woman

Body of Victim Found at Roadside Near Harlem
River Speedway

New York (P) — An attractive young woman was shot and killed early today and left by the roadside of the old Harlem river speedway where the town's gay blades traced their trotters in the nineties.

Hours later she was identified as Irma Louise Pradier, 35-year-old French domestic, by a Catholic nun who had known her through religious work. Police were unable to learn immediately, however, where she lived or worked, or to discover any motive for the slaying.

No one could be found who had heard any shots, but the police concluded from the rumpiled condition of the woman's clothing and a dirty abrasion on her face that she had been thrown from an automobile as it moved down the speedway, a lonely and deserted road at that hour.

The victim, apparently taken for a ride in gangster fashion, had been shot in the abdomen and over the heart. When the first police arriving on the scene turned her body over a .38 caliber bullet dropped from her clothing.

They also found, in a pocket of a leather windbreaker she was wearing, six lumps of sugar, a blue skirt of inexpensive cloth, tan stockings and blue oxford shoes, and was in her early thirties.

Name Sewed to Dress

Sewed to her dress was a small piece of cloth bearing the name "Irma Pradier." Detectives learned later that a woman of that name had been employed by the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind as a maid but had quit in 1932.

The police recalled the killing of Vivian Gordon six and a half years ago about four miles north of the speedway in Van Cortlandt park.

The Vivian Gordon murder was one of the city's most spectacular crimes. It climaxed a period when gangsters, as means of eliminating competitors in the field of bootlegging, the policy game and the various rackets which flourished so mightily in prohibition days had become fairly common.

Vivian, scarred and dumped in the park on Feb. 25, 1931, was a playgirl of the bright lights. She kept many little black books inscribed with the names of clients and with numerous sinister notations expressing her fear of gangland vengeance. The crime was never solved.

Claims 'Prohibition
Children' Drink Little

Mackinac Island (P) — A woman social observer told the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators today that "prohibition children" — American youth who grew up during the eighteenth amendment's lifetime—drink little themselves and disapprove of excessive drinking.

Mrs. John S. Sheppard of New York, chairman of the social study committee of the conference, made a report based on a study of New York state youth by Dr. Paul Studenski, professor of economics at New York university.

College students, she said, were almost equally divided in their opinion of whether drinking caused less restraint in matters of sex.

Governor Frank Murphy, placing decency and morals above revenue, said last night the liquor industry would serve its "best interest" by encouraging temperance.

Spokesman Thinks 'Satisfactory' Solution Is Near

NO DECISION TODAY

Opponents Abandon
Their Plan for Immediate Showdown

Washington (P) — An administration spokesman said today that a new compromise court bill possibly would be offered to win the support of opponents of the measure now before the senate.

This official, who would not be quoted by name, said there was very decided belief all around that the bitter contest over court reorganization in the senate would "work our surprisingly satisfactory to all concerned."

He expressed these opinions after Vice President Garner had spent more than an hour at the White House with President Roosevelt.

On Capitol Hill, senate court bill opponents abandoned their plan for an immediate showdown on the court bill.

After an hour's conference with a score of leaders of the opposition, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) announced it had been decided that when the bill comes up in the senate again "we are going to continue to discuss the measure."

Return to Capital

The developments at the White House and the capitol came almost simultaneously when administration and opposition leaders began to get back to work after their journey to the funeral of Senator Robinson in Arkansas. They returned last midnight.

Yesterday some of the opposition leaders had said there was strong likelihood they would move, when the senate convened today, to send the court bill back to the judiciary committee.

Administration chiefs, however, determined to oppose any showdown until the senate Democrats have chosen a new leader to succeed Robinson.

Strength in the leadership contest was almost equally split between Senators Harrison (D-Miss.) and Barkley (D-Ky.). A caucus of party members in the senate is scheduled for tomorrow morning.

The question of leadership may be settled at that time.

The administration spokesman said that public opposition to the court bill voiced yesterday by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York was not particularly surprising to the administration but the timing of the publication of his letter to Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) was "deadly" aimed.

The spokesman added that no one in responsible position in Washington was "furious" or "perturbed" by Lehman's action, least of all President Roosevelt.

He said frankly, however, that although Lehman's attitude toward the bill had been known for some time, the administration had not expected him to make his views public in that respect, he added, the New York governor's action was looked upon as "rather gratuitous."

White House officials described the meeting between the president and vice president as "a very happy one."

Subsequently discussing the possibility of a new compromise, the administration spokesman said President Roosevelt's court program embraced five separate phases and on only one, that calling for appointment of additional justices to the supreme court, was there substantial opposition.

By inference, this spokesman indicated any new attempt at a solution to the deadlock in the senate would be a matter for congress to work out.

At the capitol Barkerley said leaders on both sides had agreed to postpone resumption of the fight in the senate until Thursday.

The Farmers Mutual company paid about two-thirds of the amount involved.

A number of workmen at the pulp mill and several young people swimming at the Fourth lock saw the accident. The scaffold itself was a pile of broken and splintered wood.

O'Grady's body was taken today to his home at Chicago, and the funeral will be from the Visitation Catholic church, on Chicago's south side. Survivors are his widow and his parents, one sister Mary, and two brothers, James and Henry. He had started the chimney work in March in Florida, where he worked with Meyers, and the two

Dog days are here again, and they bring with them the popular fear of rabies or hydrophobia. The old superstition still persists that dogs are especially likely to go mad during this sultry part of the summer, according to a bulletin of the National Safety council received at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

It's wise to play safe where danger of rabies is concerned, the council says, but it also is well to remember that rabies is an all-year disease. A 5-year study made by the Missouri State Board of Health showed practically as many cases in winter as in summer.

Since rabies is fatal once it gains a foothold, the council says that the safest thing in cases of dog-bite is to see a doctor immediately. The dog which inflicted the wound should not be killed without a fair trial. It should be kept under observation for 10 to 14 days. An animal with an infectious case of rabies will show unmistakable symptoms within that time. If its behavior is normal, it is not rabid.

Merger Plan Is Adopted at Meet Of Church Group

First Reformed and Evangelical Members Vote To Join St. Johns

First Reformed and Evangelical congregation will merge with St. John Evangelical and Reformed church, according to a vote taken of members of the former group at a congregational meeting last night at the church. Disposal of the property of First Reformed and Evangelical church and other details were left in the hands of the consistory. The Rev. A. George Schick, New Holstein, president of the Sheboygan classis, and Dr. T. P. Bollinger, Madison, superintendent of the department of the Northwest Board of Home Missions. The local consistory includes Alfred Wyro, Royal Throckmold, Ben Safford and Leonard Hemstead.

The Rev. Mr. Schmid was present at the meeting last night at which the Rev. John Scheib, Kaukauna, who has been acting pastor of the church for several months, presided. For the present the congregation will meet for regular services at the present location with the Rev. Mr. Scheib in charge.

Organized in 1909 First Reformed and Evangelical church, which was originally First Reformed church, was organized Nov. 7, 1909, under the supervision of the classical missionary committee of the Sheboygan classis of the Reformed church. Its constitution was signed by eight men and six women and later subscribed to by 23 persons. The congregation first worshiped in a frame building at the corner of Lawe and Hancock streets, formerly used by the Methodist church. It acquired the church property of the German Methodist church at Superior and Hancock streets in 1931.

The first pastor of First Reformed church was the Rev. A. C. Plappert who took over his duties June 12, 1910. The Rev. H. K. Hartmann became pastor July 1, 1914, and he was succeeded by the Rev. P. Nuss who started his pastorate Dec. 1, 1920. The last regular pastor was the Rev. E. F. Franz who began his work May 20, 1927, and remained until about a year ago when he accepted a call to Pearl City, Ill. Mrs. Emma Jahn, Mrs. Carl Wickesberg and Miss Emma Wickesberg are the only charter members still living.

Built in 1895 St. John Evangelical and Reformed congregation was organized in 1894 and its church building on W. 4th avenue was erected in 1894 and 1895. The Rev. A. Guenther is its present pastor.

Merging of the two groups in Appleton does not come as a surprise for two synods, the Evangelical Church of the Northwest and the Reformed Church in the United States, merged about four years ago and since that time local mergers have been frequent in cities where there was a church belonging to each group.

Dr. W. A. Ganfield, of Carroll college, above, is to speak at one of the sessions of the Appleton district camp meeting at the Evangelical camp grounds at Forest Junction, Aug. 20 to 29.

Dr. Ganfield to Be Speaker at Church Meeting

Camp Meeting Planned at Camp Grounds at Forest Junction

Dr. W. A. Ganfield of Carroll college, Waukesha, is listed among the speakers appearing on the program of the Appleton district camp meeting which will be held at the Evangelical camp ground at Forest Junction from Aug. 20 to 29. The address by Dr. Ganfield is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, Aug. 22, at a service arranged by the Al-bright Brotherhood of the district, which John Trautmann of Appleton is president. Printed programs listing the religious services for the 10-day encampment are being distributed from the secretariat headquarters of the Appleton District Campmeeting association here on Monday.

The period of religious assembly, which annually attracts 2,000 or more Evangelical church members from eastern Wisconsin, opens again as in previous years, with a series of quarterly conferences under the supervision of the Rev. W. G. Radatz, Appleton, district superintendent, for the Morrison, Forest Junction, Brillion, and Reedsville circuits. These conferences culminate in a joint communion service on Sunday forenoon, Aug. 22. The Rev. Mr. Radatz also conducts a series of ministerial meetings continuing for three mornings, opening on Tuesday morning, Aug. 24.

Guest Speaker Guest speaker for the encampment is Dr. Reuben H. Mueller of Indianapolis, Ind., who for 10 years has been director of Christian education in the Indiana conference, and is a member of the executive committee of the International Council of Religious Education. Appearing at the camp on Tuesday, Aug. 23, Dr. Mueller, in the role of evangelist, is announcing sermons on "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," "The Price of Power," "A Great Woman," "At the Crossroads," "The Love of God," "The Great Decision," and "Thou Art . . . Thou Shalt Be."

A school of religion and methods, begun experimentally last year, is being continued under the deanship of the Rev. L. C. Vial of Oshkosh. With the Rev. G. W. Reichert of North Fond du Lac as registrar, young people from the district will enroll in classes taking "The Church Through the Centuries" under the Rev. F. E. Schlueter of Two Rivers, and "What Does It Mean to be a Christian" under the Rev. Carl F. Zietlow of Neenah.

Class sessions will begin on Thursday afternoon, when the Rev. G. H. Blum of Appleton as district president also formally opens a Christian Endeavor and Sunday school convention held annually as a part of the assembly.

State Starts New Experiments With Legume Cultures

Agriculture Department Seeks to Rate Nitrogen Fixing Ability

The department of agriculture is undertaking new experiments with legume cultures, R. C. Swanson, county agent, has been informed. The quality of commercial legume cultures sold in Wisconsin now is so high that the consumer has good assurance the products he buys will produce nodules, the department's report stated.

If this new work proves successful, the department will rate all legume cultures not only on their nodule-producing ability but also on the amount of nitrogen actually made available to the plant from the air. In other words, tests comparable to herd improvement tests with dairy cows are being made of the efficiency of the strains of legume cultures.

Different strains of these groups vary widely in nitrogen fixing ability, Griem said. This year's greenhouse studies of nodule production which have just been completed by the department show that of 134 commercial legume inoculation cultures tested only one produced questionable inoculation and two produced unsatisfactory inoculation, Griem said. Last year, when the quality was far better than in any year previous to this year, the department found eight cultures to be of questionable value and one unsatisfactory.

Bar Low Quality Under authority granted to the department, brands which are known to be of low quality are barred from sale, he pointed out.

Manufacturers of legume culture now selling in the state, he said, all employ well qualified bacteriologists who should be able to make satisfactory products. The industry has become highly competitive with prices steadily declining but quality increasing.

It is doubtful, Griem explained, if a time will ever come when every sample collected from dealer stocks will be good, because of the fact that each can or bottle when properly made contains millions of living bacteria. Improper handling of the culture after it leaves the manufacturer may be responsible for some deterioration, and it is also important that manufacturers' directions be accurately followed.

Report Few Cases of Contagion in County

Excluding 15 cases of measles in Appleton, little communicable disease was reported in Outagamie county during the week ended July 10, a state board of health report received by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, shows.

In addition to the measles cases, the report lists 3 cases of whooping cough in Appleton, 2 in the town of Bovina, 2 in the city of Kaukauna and 1 in Shiocton, 1 case of tuberculosis in the town of Oneida and 1 of chicken pox in the city of Kaukauna.

Barley Buyers Warned Against Violating Law

Written Agreement Needed When 50 - Pound Bushel Is Used

Attention of buyers is called to provisions of the state law in regard to the sale of barley by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets in a letter received by Joseph Hodgins, city sealer of weights and measures from George Warner, Madison, chief inspector of weights and measures.

The department has been getting complaints that some buyers were purchasing barley by the bushel and then taking 50 pounds, which is in violation of the state law. The law provides that if any other weight than 48 pounds to the bushel for barley is used that there would need to be a special agreement made in writing.

In other words, if a farmer makes a written contract with the dealer when it is agreed that 50 pounds is to be taken for a bushel, then the transaction is legal. In some cases all grain is purchased by the 17 pounds, no mention being made of the bushel. This also is a legal procedure, Hodgins stated.

The taking of two pounds extra per bushel in the purchase of barley means considerable to the farmer and the strict enforcement of the law will not only benefit the farmer but will make a fair and uniform business practice for buyers, the letter from the state department reads.

Strict enforcement of the law regarding the sale of barley will be made, Hodgins warned.

Madison—Quietly, without ceremony, two prominent conservationists were sworn in as members of the state conservation commission last week.

They are former congressman Edward H. Browne, Waupaca attorney, and prominent Progressive since the days of the elder LaFollette, and R. H. Fischer, Shawano, also an attorney.

Browne, who has spent a life time in public affairs, at the commission's meeting last week recalled the time in the 1909 legislature, when as a member of the senate, he served on the state's first park board. That board, he said, inaugurated the policy of establishing state parks, and got options on land in various parts of the state, including that which is now Peninsula park in Door county, which today is valued at ten times the original purchase price.

John Brittingham, since deceased, wealthy Madison resident, was a prime mover in the state park plans, according to Browne, and at one time threatened to buy a choice park himself if the legislature refused to appropriate money to buy the site for a park. And, chuckled Browne, the bluff worked.

Mr. Browne indicated that he will continue his interest in park development during his term on the state commission, which is now developing plans for a series of parks in 17 Wisconsin counties, including Calumet, Outagamie and Manitowish.

The second new member of the commission, Fischer, is looked upon by commercial fishermen, who have been quarreling with the conservation commission for years on fishing policies in outlying waters, as friendly to their point of view. Fischer is a native of Two Rivers and a friend of Everett LaFond, militant foe of the conservation department.

It is now relatively certain that the governor will issue his call for a special legislative session for the week of August 2. Two Progressive senators, E. M. Rowlands of Cambria, administration floorleader, and Michael F. Kresky of Green Bay, after calling at the executive office recently, predicted that date for the new session. In the meantime Gordon Snykin, the governor's counsel, advised reporters that there would be an announcement soon and that they should "quit guessing."

The subject of the call—the legislation to be considered in the session—is not yet settled, however, even by the governor. While relief and public welfare reorganization may be expected, fair trade practices, desired by many, has yet to be decided upon. There are others familiar with capitol trends who suggest that the governor is considering a revamped works bill.

Some who are interested in the special session whisper that the governor was disappointed in the results of his recent trip to Washington. When he left Governor LaFollette said he was to discuss relief. But when he returned the governor said nothing, which led to the rumor that he had been unsuccessful in his mission. Whatever the governor learned in Washington he will tell the lawmakers in a few weeks.

The first full-length study of Governor LaFollette and his place in American politics is now being written by the state university's prolific Prof. J. T. Salter, who is editing a new volume on representative American political leaders. Salter will contribute sketches of the governor and State Treasurer Sol Levitan for the volume, while a group of nationally known journalists and political scientists will write the rest of the book. Senator LaFollette will be included, as will Milwaukee's perennial Mayor Daniel Webster Hoan.

The acceptance of corporate research grants by the Progressive-dominated state university board of regents may yet become an intra-party issue. William T. Evjue, Madison party leader and publisher, is hammering steadily at the Willie bloc on the board for its acceptance, and according to Evjue, solicitation of Rockefeller and other funds. "Passing the tin cup" Evjue calls it.

One of the most popular and affable of the Progressive high officials is Orland S. Loomis, a few years ago an obscure Mauston lawyer, now attorney general and said to be in line for the succession to the governorship if and when Governor Phil decides to vacate that office.

Observers have noted in late months that Loomis has been doing considerable "pinch hitting" for the governor at meetings, picnics, and dinners.

To his friends Loomis is known as "Spike," for what reason no one appears to know.

A few weeks ago the Brookings institution report on the large sums spent by the federal government in salaries to bureau publicity men received wide attention and comment.

The system of hiring writers to publicize government has also been adopted in the state capitals, including Wisconsin. Every important department in the capitol has one, and sometimes two, employees whose job it is to keep the public informed, preferably through

About 60 boys have registered for Camp Onaway, Y. M. C. A. camp to be operated at Onaway Island, Waupaca, July 29 to Aug. 12, C. C. Bailey, camp director, said today.

Following are the names of boys recently registered for camp: Stuart Cooper, Alvin Blinder, Robert Brooks, John Neitzel, Stan Schimms, James Hockings, Dean Gray, William Hahnen, Edward Powers, Keith Hollenback, James Retson, Louis Phillips, Paul Kleist, William Phillips.

Sturdy Will Discuss U. S. Food Industry

Harvests and the history and progress of the American food industry will be discussed by Carlton F. Sturdy, lecturer and writer on canned food subjects, at an open meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Conway hotel Wednesday noon.

Sturdy, a representative of the American Can company, has appeared before clubs, chamber of commerce groups, adult food classes, high schools, colleges, trade meetings, service clubs and other groups throughout the United States. Kiwanis have extended invitations to all persons interested.

The newspapers, of that department's work. These employees are sometimes known as "superintendents of public relations" or just plain "publicity men." They call their products "releases," but in the language of journalism they are "handouts."

Some of them do a real service in furnishing information which in the raw is too technical for correspondents to handle because of the sacrifice of time, and in preparing authoritative statistical reports of the government's work. Others' preparations sometimes look suspiciously like free advertising for department heads.

"I want to be the boss," Treasurer Sol Levitan told the state personnel board a few days ago. Capitulating, the board agreed to name the chief administrative officer of the beverage tax division "supervisor" instead of "director." Levitan had objected to the latter title. He also counseled the board to be careful about designating too many high-sounding officials and too few subordinates in the division. "Too many generals make discord," he warned.

The white-thatched veteran frowned on a facetious suggestion that he "give jobs to football players who will get touchdowns." "I want workers, not touchdowns," Uncle Sol retorted.

How Appleton Grew Under Its 30 Mayors Since 1857

(This is the twenty-third of a series of articles discussing Appleton's mayors and the important matters occurring during their administrations. These articles will appear once a week in the Post-Crescent.)

BY L. J. DERUS

Appleton, Kaukauna, Neenah and Menasha were united by the interurban system during the reign of B. C. Wolter as the city's mayor in 1908 and 1909. There also was talk about this time for an interurban line between Appleton and Seymour.

Discussion arose as to the merits of commission form of government for the city. An indication of the town's attitude toward it in 1909 was given in the council's adoption resolution recommending passage of a bill before the state legislature making the commission form of government optional with Wisconsin cities. Appleton soon was to have the commission form replace its aldermanic system.

Construction of a post office building was being urged and Congressman Kuesterman asked congress to appropriate $100,000 for erection of one in Appleton.

The city in 1909 accepted a gift of George C. Jones of property in the Second ward ravine for a park. Concrete sidewalks were becoming increasingly popular and the city spent $33,000 in their building in 1909.

A plan to light College avenue with arches was adopted in 1908. Merchants decided to observe as holidays, Christmas, New Year's day, July 4th and Thanksgiving with decoration day and Labor day as half-holidays. Closing hours were established.

Body of Swimmer Recovered From Lake Winnebago

Believe Death Caused by Drowning or Heart Attack

The body of James Schilling, 15, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schilling, Dubuque, Ia., was taken from Lake Winnebago about 10 o'clock this morning, shortly after he disappeared while swimming near the Dr. W. J. Frawley cottage. Whether he died from drowning or from a heart attack has not been determined. The cottage is located about a mile east of Waverly beach.

The youth was swimming near a diving raft about 100 yards off shore when he suddenly disappeared. Thomas Frawley, 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Frawley, who was sitting on the raft called for help. His cries were answered by Lawrence Gage and Orville Murphy, Appleton, who were at nearby cottages, and they recovered the body from eight feet of water within 10 minutes, it was reported.

Attempts for about two hours to revive the youth by Appleton firemen proved futile.

James Schilling was visiting at the home of Dr. C. E. Ryan, 113 E. Lawrence street, who is an uncle of the victim's mother. The young swimmers had been rowed out to the diving raft shortly before the accident by William Frawley, 12 years old.

The body was taken to the Brett-Schneider Funeral home.

Nanking, planned to leave the capital for Shanghai by Friday.

The news agency reported from Fengtai, the Japanese field headquarters in North China that shells started bursting in the heart of the positions held by the 37th Chinese division at 2:30 p. m. The zero hour had been set as noon.

The four ranking members of the Japanese cabinet were in session to consider drastic action against China to force a settlement of the increasingly tense crisis in Sino-Japanese relations.

The news agency declared that the Japanese forces were continuing to advance. Wanglingsien is located just north of the historic Marco Polo bridge of marble where the first clash occurred July 7.

Before the artillery bombardment began, Domel reported, Japanese planes flew over the city dropping leaflets warning the populace to evacuate.

The Japanese attack was launched in force and dispatches to Tokyo newspapers expressed fear casualties would be heavy as artillery and machine guns were brought into full play by both sides.

Peiping proper, where the boom of cannon could be plainly heard, was said to have been thrown into consternation.

According to the Domei reports, the Chinese started the attack at just about the time the ultimatum was to expire. As a "punitive measure" the Japanese turned their artillery on the Chinese troop concentrations, the agency said.

After a brief silence, the Chinese resumed firing and then wave after wave of Japanese infantry was launched and the engagement became general.

Summer School For Ministers Opens at College

Methodist Episcopal Conferences Conduct Annual Classes

About 40 persons attended the opening session of the fifteenth annual summer school conducted by the board of ministerial training of the West Wisconsin and Wisconsin conferences of the Methodist Episcopal church last night at Main hall, Lawrence college. Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, chancellor of the American university at Washington, D. C., gave the opening address of the course which he is conducting on "Preaching."

Dr. Gray stressed the importance of a minister being a good preacher, pointing out that while a man may be a good organizer or fine at social affairs or advertising, his principal requirement is that he be able to prepare and deliver a good sermon.

Two Groups

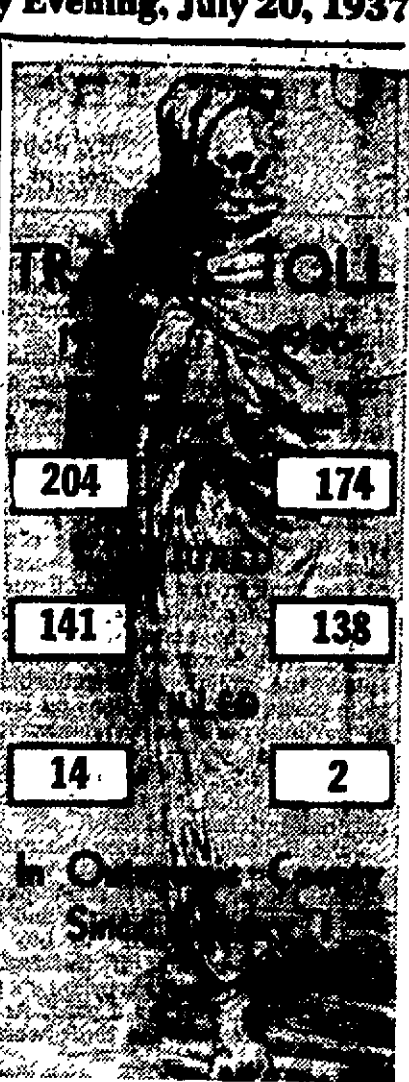

The summer school operates in two groups, the graduate and undergraduate schools, about 40 persons registered this year. Dr. Gray and Prof. Clarence T. Craig, head of the department of theology in the graduate school of Oberlin college, are the graduate lecturers. The undergraduate school is attended by ministers who have not been to college and who are taking a four year course of study which the Methodist Episcopal church requires of those who cannot take regular college courses.

The Rev. Harry S. Wise, pastor of the Division Street Methodist Episcopal church at Fond du Lac, is dean of the school and Dr. E. H. Mueller, La Crosse, is secretary. The staff of teachers for the undergraduate school includes the Rev. Paul B. White, Viroqua; the Rev. A. F. Hughes, LaCrosse; the Rev. E. B. Frye, Madison; the Rev. George C. Sanderson, Kaukauna; the Rev. Anton Hatfield, Mayville; the Rev. D. O. Anderson, Ft. Atkinson; and the Rev. C. C. Dittes, Sheboygan Falls.

Gives Lecture

This morning Professor Craig lectured on "The Quest of the Historical Jesus," and he will give other lectures at 10:30 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings and at 7:30 Thursday and Friday evenings as well as 7:30 Thursday and Friday evenings. Dr. Gray will give the lecture at 7:30 this evening at Main hall and also at 7:30 and 8:25 Wednesday morning.

Dr. Allan MacRae, New York, general secretary of ministerial training for the Methodist Episcopal church, will be at the summer school later in the week. Out-of-town ministers attending the school are housed at Ormsby hall.

Pea Canning to be Finished at Local Factory Tomorrow

Pea canning operations at the Fuhrmann Canning Co., Appleton Junction, will be completed tomorrow and beans will then be taken in at the local factory, an official of the concern said today.

A "fair crop" of peas was harvested and canned this year but the excessive heat caused considerable damage, it was said. Extensive spraying warded the invasion of pea lice and no damage was done. Pea canning began here June 24.

Prospects for a large bean crop are good but rain is needed, the officials said. Beets and carrots will be canned after the bean crop is finished and a crew of about 125 persons will be employed throughout the summer.

Marconi, Inventor Of Wireless, Dies In Palace in Rome

men, carrying candles and bearing the academy shield, escorted the cortege into the funeral chamber and stood guard about the casket.

The first intimation that Marconi was not feeling well came yesterday afternoon when he was forced to cancel an appointment with a friend.

Pope Pius XI, with whom the inventor had a long audience Saturday concerning the new radio station he was building for the Vatican, was notified by telephone at his summer residence at Castel Gondolfo. He sent a special blessing to the inventor.

Despite his feeling of ill health yesterday afternoon, Marconi insisted on working on his latest microwave experiments.

The Marconi company offices are in the inventor's home and today the employees learned of his death as they arrived for work. Many of them wept openly.

Marconi's body will be removed to historic Farnesina palace, headquarters of the Italian Royal Academy, on the banks of the Tiber this afternoon to lie in state in the blue robes of an academician.

Burial at Bologna

Following a preliminary funeral service in Rome, the body will be taken for burial to Bologna where he conducted his first experiments in a barn on his father's country estate.

A state funeral will be given for the inventor Saturday afternoon, it was officially announced.

A friend of the family said Pope Pius learned of the inventor's condition before death came. The pontiff was said to have arisen from bed at 2:30 a. m. and personally telephoned the Marconi home to inquire. He retired to his private chapel to pray for Marconi's soul.

At the time of his death Marconi was working on three different developments of the principle he discovered: television, especially with the use of ultra short waves; further developments of the micro-wave, a new type radio transmitter for airplanes.

Much of Marconi's work had been devoted to military purposes in the last few years and he had been repeatedly reported at work on a "death ray." This, however, was denied as frequently as it was reported.

THOSE WHO PACKED BEFORE

MR. ROOSEVELT

"The slain bandit was George Carson, alias Sharkey, ex-convict, murderer and oldtime gangster. His wounded partner was Edmund Hunt, alias Fred Hardy, paroled convict, robber, and hit-and-run auto killer."

The above happens to be quoted from a Chicago newspaper. But similar items may be found daily all over the country, wherever courts have already been weakened and their authority transferred to politically constituted parole boards.

For the New Deal was not the first to attack the courts although its forerunner was more subtle.

Down in Illinois the legislature passed an act, just vetoed by the governor, which sought to improve the situation by prohibiting the parole of a convict until at least the minimum sentence imposed upon him had been served. Thus, a sentence of 5 to 15 years meant that the convict must serve at least 5. But Governor Horner, reflecting the president's ideas no doubt in this respect, argues that parole boards composed of experts, splendid students of criminology, should have the right to overrule the judgment of courts and substitute their own. It is a fine idea. The only trouble with it is that it is built on false premises.

Chicago gives us on the same day another example of the general breakdown of justice just as the powers of courts are taken from them by men with happy though somewhat drugged ideas.

Frank Furch was convicted by a jury of first degree murder. He had intentionally armed himself with a gun and deliberately killed his wife. Since there were several witnesses denial was not made but Furch said he just simply couldn't remember. He also pled insanity. The evidence in this respect, however, was so heavy, indeed so complete against him, that the jury could not find him insane.

Yet when this jury found him guilty it fixed his punishment at 14 years imprisonment, which, under the good behavior rule, will force him to serve a little over 8 years for murder, for wilful, wanton, deliberate murder.

It was argued in Illinois that jurors know so much more than judges about the punishment to be inflicted they should be given that authority. So the authority to fix punishment on homicide cases was taken from the courts.

Thus do you see that the little rivulet that worked its way through the dyke is crumbling the entire protective system before your eyes.

Taking authority that belongs primarily to judges and giving it to jurors, taking further authority that naturally and necessarily belongs to judges and giving it to the most part to political parole boards whose reputation for corruption in this country outshines anything produced by Tammany, constituted the start of the attack upon our judicial tribunal.

Taking such further authority as remains and giving it to executives will result so much more make justice a wretched byword and exalt corruption and political pull.

HOUSE OF GERMAN ART

Is the House of German Art to become a house of horrors in creating or furthering racial antipathy and intolerance?

No doubt Herr Hitler can create an exhibition of paintings and sculpture that will sicken any person who isn't a bit crazy himself because cubism, futurism, dadaism and other neurotic spasms and plunges have been evidenced by greasy-haired individuals who insisted they were artists.

If it is the purpose of the ex-house painter to gather together the extreme and foolish and drunken drawings of men and women who mistakenly considered themselves artists and point to it as Jewish conception no one, of course, can say him may within the borders of the Reich, and if the German people believe the exhibit the ex-house painter will have won his point.

Within the confines of a dictator's realm his point may as well be always conceded as not because he will have it anyway, and no other point may be presented.

DR. PITKIN PRESUMES

If one is 40, he almost certainly has heard about the man who authors best sellers in the inspirational book classification. Dr. Walter B. Pitkin of Columbia University believes life begins then, writes thought-provoking books and collects tidy royalties.

Perhaps Dr. Pitkin, addressing a Purdue University conference the other day, had no more serious intent than to provoke thought when he predicted that a "coolie class" is evolving in the United States.

Ten million Americans, he says, now are socially and economically "almost at a Chinese coolie level of progress and culture." He declares that if this class continues to multiply, the United States must support a greatly increased population. This nation, he says, could support 288,350,000 persons on the Asiatic existence level of two acres per capita; could support a coolie population of 350,000,000 if need arose. It would be necessary to increase production of ten major crops 47 per cent and to bring some poorer land back into production.

Most of the professors have been telling us that in another 30 years, at the most, the population peak in the United States will have been reached and that the population curve, then, will turn downward. None of the professors has suggested a peak population greater than 200,000,000; most of the estimates have been well below that figure.

The suggestion that a coolie class is evolving in the United States is repugnant. Most Americans will want to believe that even the least favored social groups in the United States live better than do the great submerged populations of China and India. Undoubtedly they do. Else for what purpose have billions of dollars been poured out during these last years?

Dr. Pitkin talks about the lack of "progress and culture" among 10,000,000 Americans. Here again most persons will feel that he has, perhaps, supplied a too-gloomy picture of actual conditions. Informed Americans do not gloss over the fact that the illiteracy ratio in the United States is high. Tests given World War drafts focused attention on a comparatively high percentage of illiterates. Several countries make a better showing. But great educational advances have been made in the last 20 years.

There has been progress. And progress continues. Living conditions do grow better, despite depressions, as science and industry advance.

It is inconceivable that a coolie class will be permitted to evolve in the United States. It is conceivable that a coolie class can develop on the land this Nation occupies. If it does, however, most persons will want to believe that such evolution will come only after our government, as we know it, has passed into history.

There is no place for a coolie class in a nation founded on the principles of liberty.

TOO MANY "ISMS"

An interesting test may be made by any person who finds himself in the middle of one of the hot arguments about fascism or communism that seem to be the fashion nowadays.

It is assumed, of course, that the person who conducts the test knows all the answers. He will be able to define, to his own satisfaction at least, just what he means when he uses the words.

The test is simple. He will ask the person on his left to supply the definitions of the words. He will ask the others in their turn.

And the results he will get will surprise him. What is more, the results are likely to end the argument then and there. Or, perhaps, some one may send in a riot call.

For the odds probably are a thousand to one that no two persons who are arguing so glibly will be agreed about the definitions. The words have come to mean all things to all men.

Now, when press and pulpit and public find fascination in these words, is it not strange that a common language is lacking?

We need some better definitions if we are to know what we are talking about. The words are not new. Communism, especially, has been tested more than once in American communities. The principles of fascism are as old as recorded history though the name was coined only recently.

It may be the fashion, now, to talk familiarly about these theories of government. Fashion changes with changing times.

But if we are to talk intelligently, as well, we should know what we are talking about.

In other times we used words whose meanings were clear. We knew what right and justice and equity meant. We were fairly well agreed about the definition of democracy.

If we are to continue to use these new words and if we are to get better acquainted with all that they represent, it would appear to be necessary that we shall be agreed about what they mean.

We do not need imported terminology so much as we need understanding.

The oldest astronomical instrument in China and possibly in the world is a sundial at Teng-feng, Honan province, erected around 1150 B. C.

Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain will get an honorary degree next autumn from the University of London.

WHAT WITH all the other shooting and excitement going on, your correspondent has somewhat overlooked the Chinese-Japanese trouble. One of the principal reasons may be that he fails to understand just what the fighting is about. This is not a new state of affairs; particularly since he cannot understand war anyway, nor appreciate the need for it. . . . and because his arches go suddenly from normal to flat every time he contemplates the idea of battle and going forth to be blown up, gassed, or otherwise rubbed out. . . . It's dangerous enough just going out in the car. . . .

STOOISMS

Jonah!

A man of prominence, in a position to know, has told me that he expects a break between Lewis and Roosevelt; this in turn to be followed by a request for Frances Perkins' resignation and the appointment of Philip LaFollette to the position of Secretary of Labor.

Methinks we could turn the navy loose on our highways to enforce driving regulations and do a lot more good with a lot less expense than looking for a foolhardy needle in a Pacific haystack. Incidentally, if every motorist would drive with an imaginary basket of eggs on his motor hood we would have fewer accidents. Try it sometime, it really works!

If you don't like Wisconsin weather—wait five minutes.

Send the battleships out on Highway 41, admiral, I think Stoo has something here.

It is interesting to note that Governor Lehman, of New York State, the president's man, has written Senator Wagner voicing his disapproval of the president's court packing bill.

But it is more interesting to note that both sides of the argument claim that they can win on the first ballot.

At least, if the vote was taken today (a matter I can't very well predict), we'll see who was bluffing.

PUZZLE DEPT.

Jonah:

What would you do without Blon De Zeke, Mrs. G. W. and the rest of the contributors to this column?

Answer: Sit in a hot office an hour over time and think of what to write to fill the column. (I'm ducking)

Don't duck—I was just thinking the same thing.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

MY YARD

Before vacation's swift advance,
The grass was green and crocus-starred.
I used to watch the sunlight dance
Upon my beautiful back yard.

But now the marks of boyish feet
Are on the ground beneath the trees.
The roses make the morning sweet,
I hear the humming of the bees;

And know the sweetest sight of all
Is this short place where children play.
How darkly would the shadows fall
If they had not come home today!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, July 19, 1927

Heading an aerial procession from Chicago, Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hegener arrived at the county airport in Milwaukee at 10:30 Tuesday morning to participate in an all day reception given in honor of the trans-Pacific fliers by Maitland's native city.

In the second round of the junior tennis tournament sponsored by the Doty Tennis club of Neenah and Menasha, Don Rumsey defeated L. Kuester; W. Forth drew a bye; H. Meyer defeated F. Olson; and C. Vetter defeated K. Dietz. Rumsey will meet L. Kuester and Meyer will play C. Vetter in the semi-finals within a few days. The finals will be played later in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoffman, Miss Gertrude Kubitz, Mrs. Fred Hoffman and daughter, Grace, have returned from Camp Douglas where they spent the weekend. Gerald Hoffman will remain the rest of the week with the latter's father, Maj. S. W. Hoffman.

25 YEARS AGO

July 23, 1912

It was estimated that more than half the cellars in the city were flooded after the heaviest rainfall in several years. Nearly 2 inches of rain fell in five hours, most of it in a half hour. Some basements contained from one to four feet of water after the deluge.

Ground was broken for a large addition to the Appleton Coated Paper company plant. The company employed about 60 persons then but it was expected that when the addition was completed, the number would increase to nearly 100.

John Maurer, proprietor of a grocery store on W. College avenue, announced that he would retire Sept. 1. He had been in the business here for 22 years.

Consolidation of the Wisconsin Telephone and the Fox River Valley Telephone and Telegraph companies was completed. Plans were being made in cities including Appleton, where both companies had exchanges, to combine them in Wisconsin Telephone company buildings.

Rev. and Mrs. Theodore Marsh were granted a 3-month vacation by Zion Lutheran congregation and left for Germany.

Appleton and Aurora broke even in a double header Monday. "Flying Dutchman" Brautigam, Appleton shortstop, had five putouts and 10 assists in the first game and three of each in the second without an error.

Although South China and Burma were original homes of the orange, China now imports 30,000 pounds of oranges from the U. S. a month.

The following passage was among those read from the Bible: "And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and besought Him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray Thee come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed and she shall live. And Jesus went with him, and when He was come in He saith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? The damsel is not dead, but sleepeth. And He took the damsel by the hand and said unto her, Talitha cumi, which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise. And straightway the damsel arose and walked."

Forest Junction Fair Entertains At Family Reunion

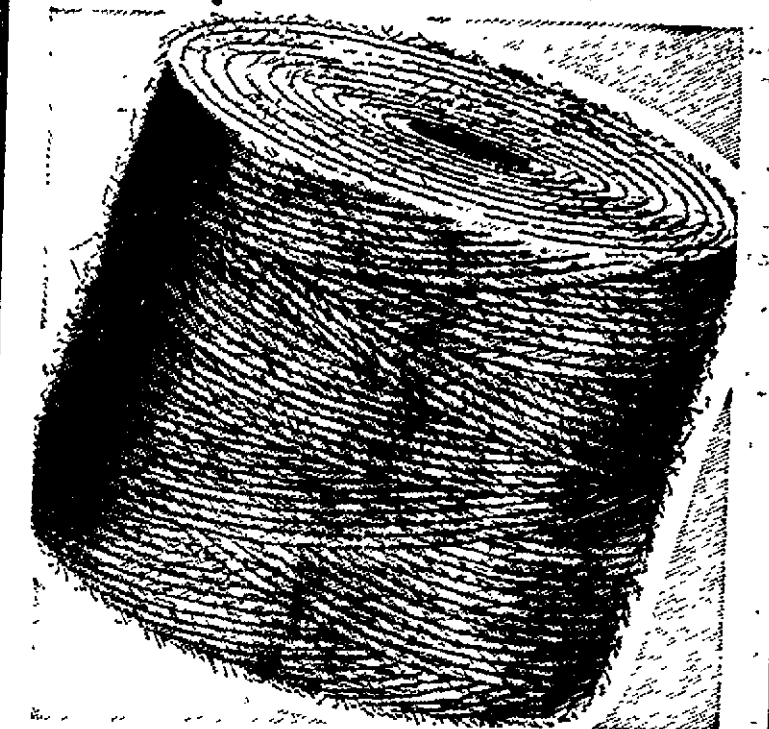

Forest Junction — Mr. and Mrs. Martin Diekvoos entertained here Sunday afternoon at a family reunion for relatives of Mrs. Diekvoos, who was formerly Miss Louise Zumm of Columbus, Wis. Among the more than twenty-five guests at the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schneider and family, Mrs. Kate Strupler, Miss Bernice Clabaugh and Kenneth Lalla, Milwaukee; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hank and daughter, Vera, and Miss Lydia Zumm, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Robbins and daughter, Mrs. Lena Robbins and family, Fall River; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Robbins and family, and Miss Gertrude Robbins, Waupun; and Leonard Haug, Madison.

Under the leadership of their president, Wilmer Thiel, 19 members of the Christian Endeavor society of Emmanuel Evangelical church of Lark, participated in a young people's service at Zion Evangelical church on Sunday evening. Opening the service with a song, Mr. Thiel was assisted by Misses Arlynn Thiel and Erna Schneider, singing a series of duets, and Miss Roma Wagner as piano accompanist. The topic of the evening, "Jesus, the Available Friend," was discussed by Ellsworth Kuchenecker.

cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and besought Him greatly, saying, My little daughter lieth at the point of death. I pray Thee come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed and she shall live. And Jesus went with him, and when He was come in He saith unto them, Why make ye this ado, and weep? The damsel is not dead, but sleepeth. And He took the damsel by the hand and said unto her, Talitha cumi, which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, arise. And straightway the damsel arose and walked."

Teasers, Practical Jokers Cruel, Says Dorothy Dix

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—What chance of happiness is there in a marriage between a sensitive woman and a teasing man? I love him and he loves me, but is that going to make me stop minding his making fun of me? Obviously, it isn't going to stop his teasing. Here is the way it goes: We may have been spending a happy evening together. Then suddenly he will snatch a chance remark I made, misconstrue it and tell me what I said. I deny it, and we are off, and the more I make an idiot of myself by getting mad, the funnier he thinks it is. His teasing will drive me into saying something that I don't mean, which he will take very seriously and refuse to forget. I could retaliate and watch him squirm, but I don't want to hurt him. I do not get any pleasure out of seeing the hurt look in his eyes. Instead, I go to great pains not to wound him, for I know how easily it is done. Why does he delight in wounding me? ROSE.

Answer:

He teases you because there is something sadistic in his nature that makes him get a kick out of making people suffer. All teasers and practical jokers are cruel. They delight in seeing suffering, and it is a pity that they missed their day by not living in the time of the Inquisition. They would have had a perfectly grand time watching people writhe on the rack.

There are plenty of people like your friend who do not think that anything is funny unless it involves inflicting pain upon some one. They lay traps that the unwary stumble into and bark their shins, and they laugh themselves sick when they can throw a banana peeling so an old man or woman slips on it and breaks a leg. Or they consider it excruciatingly amusing to upset an ink bottle over your new suit, or make you sit down on a pie at a picnic, when they know that it takes weeks of saving for you to buy a new garment. Or they do something to put you in an embarrassing position and make you feel like a clown. Their wit consists entirely in saying things that stab to the heart and that leave a wound that never ceases to ache in one's vanity.

All of us know men who make their wives the butt of all their jokes and whose funny stories always hinge on some blunder their wives have made and which they magnify and dress up until it makes the wife seem a perfect fool. None of us who have heard these brags of husbands set a table in a roar by holding up their wives as figures of fun, to be guffawed at until we wondered why the poor persecuted woman didn't retaliate by taking the carving knife to the husbands who were so brutally exploiting them.

My advice to you is to save yourself a lifetime of misery by refusing to marry a teaser, because if before marriage he gets his amusement by baiting you, it will be his favorite indeed sport after marriage, and he will keep your feelings raw and bleeding by his continual jabs at your sensitive spot.

The only woman for him to marry is one who has a skin like a rhinoceros, off of whom his teasing will roll without making a single dent and who will give back stab for stab. For if you will observe the people who are most fond of making jokes at other people's expense can never take a joke themselves.

Dear Dorothy Dix—We are two boys who recently have enlisted in the service and under military laws are not eligible for marriage for six years. We are both in love and are at a loss to know if it is fair to ask our girls to wait for us. We have not told them what length of time is needed before marriage is possible. What should we do? H. and J.

Answer:

You should certainly tell the girls at once that you can't marry for six years and leave it up to them as to whether or not they will wait that long. My earnest advice to all four of you is to forget it, because in six years you will have changed completely and may not want each other. The girls will be almost old maids, and you will be looking out for flappers, and you may have kept them from making good marriages.

Why not leave the matter open? A long engagement can be a ball and chain about a man's feet as well as a girl's.

Old Gardener Says:

E. I. Farrington

It is not necessary to use a lawn mower as frequently in mid-summer as in the spring, a fact which does not annoy the home owner who runs his own mower. There has been a tendency in the past to cut lawns too closely, which has been one reason for their drying out rapidly. Close shearing is to be avoided, because if the tops of the grass blades are cut off they cannot manufacture the plant food that the roots need. The lawn mower should be set high enough so that the grass blades will be left at least an inch tall. No harm is done if they are permitted to remain one and one-half inches tall, although this makes it necessary to use the mower more frequently. (Copyright, 1937)

My Neighbor Says—

Watch out for the borer that is now attacking iris plants. If not checked it will destroy plants.

To wash a flannel shirt, soak it in cold water overnight, so it will not shrink. Then wash it in warm water and put in a very little borax. Rinse in cold water and dry in a good wind. When almost dry, iron on the wrong side.

Have the gutters on your house cleaned out before the winter sets in. Dry leaves blow in and block them up, thus preventing water flowing through. (Copyright, 1937)

Ventilated Headgear

Fashion's summer favorite is a turban which leaves the crown of the head bare to the breezes. Here you see an informal version made of two twisted chiffon squares—one blue, one white—worn with a Wedgewood blue linen dress. More blue appears in the sapphire-toned beads, which make the necklace and stud the silver bracelet.

Enemies of Squirrels

Hawks often attack squirrels, and the furry animals are much afraid of them.

The other squirrel bit the snake savagely on the back of the head.

Let a goshawk or a red-tailed hawk see a gray squirrel in the woods, and soon the chase will be on. Usually the squirrel stays on the trunk of a tree, dodging around it to get out of the way. The bird sees him on one side, but when it dashes to the spot, the squirrel is on the other side. Sometimes he chatters or barks as if to say, "Ha, Ha! You can't catch me!"

Often the squirrel is able to save himself, even though the hawk keeps up the attack for half an hour or more. If hawks hunt in pairs, however, the story is likely to be different. Escaping from one of them, the squirrel is seized in the talons of the other, and is carried away to a spot where both birds can feast on his flesh.

Bluejays and other jays can be classed as enemies, for they sometimes steal the food squirrels have stored in hollows of trees. Red squirrels often store up seeds from pine, spruce and hemlock trees, and the birds may want to help them.

selves—but they don't do it when the squirrels are very close.

Owls are among the larger enemies of the squirrels tribe, and they make away with quite a number of them. The most dangerous enemies, however, are furry animals—weasels, wolves, wildcats, lynxes and foxes.

The pine marten, which is a large member of the weasel tribe, makes red squirrels his special game. He chases them through the trees, from branch to branch and often from tree to tree. The marten can make just about the same speed as the squirrel, and the race is sure to be close.

To make good his escape, the squirrel may run into a hole in a tree just large enough for his body, but too small for the marten to squeeze through. Another method of escape is to run to tree branches which are too small to bear the weight of the other animal's body, and to leap from one of those branches to a small branch in another tree.

Two men walking through the woods in southern Illinois saw a battle to the death between a pair of squirrels and a large snake. The fight took place in a tree.

The snake obtained what seemed a strange hold on one of the squirrels. The other squirrel sank his teeth into the back of the snake's head, and forced it to let go. Badly hurt, it fell to the ground, and the men went to it and ended its struggles with a club. They measured it, and found it to be a little more than five feet long.

Neither of the squirrels seemed badly hurt. Perching in the tree, they chattered away, as if they were telling the world, "We took care of that big, bad snake!"

Tuck Child in Once and For All, Patri Advises

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Off to bed now, darling." "I want to kiss daddy good night." "Why you did kiss daddy, you remember." "Kiss him again." So daddy is given a bear hug, a long kiss, then the performance is repeated. Again it is repeated and daddy, almost smothered, says, "Now that's all. Go to bed now."

That sounds final, so the child allows mother to carry him off. She escorts him to the bathroom, tucks him in bed, hears his prayers, kisses him good night, turns out the light and starts downstairs. She gets halfway down when she hears, "Mummy dear, I want to kiss you good night."

"The darling thing," says mother softly, turns back, lights the room again, gets a bear's hug and a long kiss, and then another and then another until she protests, "That's enough now, dear. It is getting late. Lie down and go to sleep." Again the light is turned off, the door closed, and the stairs descended, this time to the foot.

"Mummy dear, I want a drink." "But I gave you a drink."

"I know, but I'm thirsty."

"Poor lamb. Firsty. Well, I'll just have to go back and give him a drink."

He gets a drink; chokes and gurgles; sighs; hands back the glass; says sweetly, "Thank you, mummy dear." Who could resist the angel child? Mother agonizes to more hugs, more long kisses. Once more she retreats, this time saying, "Now don't call again, dear. Go right to sleep."

"Yes, mummy dear. I will."

This time mother gets as far as the chair in the living room when the plaintive voice floats down the stairway. "Mummy, dear. I'm hungry. Please bring me a cracker."

Mother rises wearily and father leaps out of his chair. "You sit down, Mary. No, you sit down. Can't you see he is riding you? He can't be hungry. It's just another stall. See here, young man, you turn over and go to sleep and not an-

Streaks of Gray Hair Are Aging

BY ELSIE PIERCE

SOMETIME ago we commented on the unmerciful magnifying powers of the sun in revealing skin and hair flaws. The other day this was brought home very clearly. A man was saying about a woman he knew, "I never noticed those gray streaks, but then I guess the mellow lights of a drawing room, theatre or restaurant are kinder than the glaring lights of the sun. How aging a few stray gray streaks can be to a woman. They make a man look distinguished, prosperous—a woman look old. Men don't have to do anything about graying hair... but women are fools if they don't."

He was not being unkind, at least he did not mean to be. He was merely speaking the truth as he sees it... and it is true that strands of gray can be definitely aging, more so, in fact, than a head of snow-white hair.

One thing is certain, that an all-white head of hair usually sets off a young, clear complexion so that one invariably comes to the conclusion "prematurely gray; but very youthful in spite of it." Gray streaks on the other hand dull the eyes, deaden the skin, sharpen the features, give one a general lack-lustre look. It is that "re-singed" look that says, "I can't conceal the calendar any more." And it is wrong. It doesn't belong to the modern scheme. It was in order when Grandma was a girl because she hadn't the courage or the scientific ways and means to remedy matters.

A True Story
Let me tell you a true story as an indication of the scientific marvels of our age. About a week or ten days ago we saw a woman at the beach—hair disarranged or rather carelessly arranged (that "I can't help it" resigned look) and streaks of gray giving face and hair a dull, lifeless quality.

Several days later at an amateur performance we saw her again... only we did not know she was a changed person. At the end of the performance several people gathered around her to tell her how perfectly she had played her part. I was introduced and by way of making a little conversation other than "You were splendid," I said, "You have a mother or is it your sister—looks so much like you, but I don't seem to see her here."

She smiled, explaining that it wasn't another member of her family—but she herself. And when I hastened to explain "But you look so different—so much lovelier—and younger," I realized that I was making matters worse.

Later another friend who knew her well explained, "It's her hair. She has a way of letting it go for weeks and weeks—and not until something special is in the wind does she do something about it. It's a pity, too, because when she has it touched up and arranged becomingly she looks some fifteen other word out of you. Understand?"

"I'm hungry, daddy."

"No, you're not. Turn over and go to sleep or I'll come up and turn you over smartly. Enough is enough. You say good night once and for all and that ends it."

"Good night, daddy dear."

"John, how can you be so gruff with him, the darling. He's only two and a half."

"Exactly. So what will he be like when he is four and a half? After this he gets one good night and no more. I'm not going to have him run you off your feet. And I'm not going to have a spoiled kid either. Here's your book."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and children as to the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Few Can Execute Double Squeezes Under Stress

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The recent international tournament at Budapest (which, incidentally, proved to be a huge success) established beyond cavil or doubt that women need ask no quarter from the greatest of men experts in a bridge contest. My wife, Josephine Culbertson, and Mrs. A. M. Sobel, both members of the Culbertson team-of-four, acquitted themselves, not merely with credit, but with glory. Their sensational play was the talk of Budapest.

Charles Vogelfoer, the third member of our team, played in his usual flawless fashion and, as a matter of fact, the major part of the blame for losing to Austria in the final round can be laid at the doorstep of your humble scribe, who was most definitely off stride. The following hand testifies to the skill of Mrs. Sobel, who was declarer.

rigid control of the suit, the low club was next, led from dummy. West won with the queen, and the ten of spades. Dummy's ace won. The club king was cashed, and declarer entered her hand with the spade king.

On this play West had to discard a heart in order to retain his diamond stopper. The club jack now forced West to another heart discard, dummy and East discarding diamonds. Having already squeezed West out of two hearts, declarer now proceeded to put East under pressure by running three rounds of diamonds. On the third round, East had to throw in the sponge. He could not let go the nine of spades without establishing dummy's five spot, and to let go a heart would be to relinquish the only defensive stopper left in the suit.

On the wild hope that declarer would miscount hearts and the realization that a spade miscount was impossible, East let go the heart seven. But Mrs. Sobel does not make mistakes, particularly in counting. She cashed dummy's heart king and won the last two and fulfilling trick with the ace and eight of hearts.

One hears a great deal about double squeezes, but there are not many experts, men or women, who execute them flawlessly in the stress of a tournament.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

JO-JOTTE POINTER

The no trump bid has two peculiar characteristics. First, it is the only bid which overcalls a suit contract. If I name clubs, you cannot take the contract away from me by bidding spades, hearts, or diamonds, but you can rob me of my contract and become the declarer yourself by bidding no trump. Secondly, it is a low scoring contract. No jack or nine has any value at no trump, nor is there the Jo-Jotte combination. The maximum of scorable points in cards is 130. Usually the combined score of the two players will be about 90 points. Except in the rare cases in which a slam can be made, it is nearly impossible for a player to go game at no trump by scoring 90 points on one hand.

Tuesday is Experts' day in Ely Culbertson's column. Write your bridge comments, suggestions, and interesting hands to him, care of this paper. For questions, remember to inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

WELCOMING THE NEWCOMERS
 Dear Mrs. Post: Recently Mr. and Mrs. X, who are good friends of my sister (a family of husband and wife and two half grown children) moved to this town. I had never met them at my sister's house because our visits were never long enough for her to ask friends in to meet us. But if possible I would like very much to extend some courtesy to these newcomers. The question is what to do. We have very limited means and our friends are little better off, and I believe my sister's friends are too well off. I'm afraid, to find us, or our group of friends, particularly helpful to them in becoming established in this town. But as I do not want to be discourteous, what would you suggest that I might do?

Answer: First of all I think it would be courteous to go to see Mrs. X, and if possible you might invite her and her husband to a small cocktail tea and invite a number of friends to meet them. If this is not practical, I would suggest that you ask them and their children to your ordinary evening party or dinner on Sunday. In other words, make it a family party. In this case, serve as good a meal as you can, and don't worry what you can't do. If you can't do this either, then merely invite her to "come in for a cup of tea" alone, or perhaps include your one or two most intimate friends who probably know your sister.

Dear Mrs. Post: My young daughter graduated from high school this year and at the time I hoped to be able to give her a party, but was ill and could not. Since the class was small and all of them are in town this summer, she would still like me to give the party. Could we call this a "coming-out" party or would such a party be out of keeping with the simplicity of this small community? And since her father and I know many of the teachers we would also like to invite them and some of our older friends. How may the invitations be worded?

Answer: I think the nicest thing to do would be to write "Party for Jane" across your card and then down in the lower corner write the time and the day. But if you would like to make the cards seem more formal then write "Miss Jane Jones" underneath your names and write the time and day on the upper part of the card. I wouldn't call the party a "coming-out," but simply a small party for Jane. The fact that you are inviting people of all ages would mean that you are announcing her coming out. (Copyright, 1937)

Lawrence Scores Roosevelt Stand On Constitution

Points to Dangers of Attempting to Change Amendment Procedure

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — An issue greater than the question of whether the supreme court shall be enlarged to meet a particular situation has been projected by President Roosevelt. It is whether the American people shall be permitted hereafter to pass directly on amendments to the constitution.

Governor Lehman, Democrat, head of the most populous state in the union, and intimate friend of the president, says in opposing the president's court bill that "the orderly processes of government should not be sacrificed merely to meet an immediate situation."

The New York governor's pronouncement, coming as it does as the senate reassembles to choose a leader to succeed the late Joe Robinson, is the strongest possible testimony that Mr. Roosevelt, contrary to the judgment of those who have supported him and who believe in the New Deal program as a whole, has set himself stubbornly against the tide of constitutional procedure. It appears that the governor of New York several months ago tried to dissuade the president from his present course.

Now the fundamental character of the whole controversy comes to the surface. It was, of course, plainly indicated by the president in his letter last week to Senator Barkley wherein Mr. Roosevelt disparaged the time-honored method of amending the constitution. He said that since 13 states now can block an amendment the existing process is undesirable.

What the president has failed to do, however, is to point to a single instance where exactly 13 states have ever blocked ratification of a constitutional amendment. Nor can Mr. Roosevelt find any occasion when a constitutional amendment, actually wanted by as many as half the states of the union, was ever blocked by 13 states within a couple years after the given amendment was submitted by both houses of congress.

18-Month Process
The record shows, on the other hand, that, when any substantial number of states want an amendment, it goes through to ratification. In the case of the last two amendments, the process took less than eighteen months.

Mr. Roosevelt's new declaration can only mean that he believes an act of congress, driven through by a president possessed of patronage and other instruments of political pressure, is to be regarded as the equivalent of a constitutional amendment. Already he has said that he wants justices to sit on the supreme court who share his conception of what the constitution means. If the legislative body is to be the final judge of what is or is not constitutional and if the executive may control the legislative branch of the government, the American system of checks and balances with three coordinate branches of government tends to disappear.

Mr. Roosevelt has often been accused by his opponents of wishing to destroy the constitution or at least to subordinate its processes to his own will or assertion of power, but not until now has he given proof in writing that he wants to abandon the traditional method of making changes in the constitution.

Wanted To Be Certain
The founders of the republic were not concerned with the power of 13 states to block an amendment. They were much more interested in looking at the three-fourths majority idea. They wanted to make sure that a preponderant sentiment of the people favored a change when change was proposed. Thus, when the constitution was adopted just 150 years ago, the three-fourths rule meant that four out of the 13 original states could block an amendment. State sovereignty was regarded as a precious asset. If state rights were to be over-riden, the framers of the republic felt that at least 10 out of the 13 states should concur in the proposal.

There was, moreover, a keen appreciation in the very first years of the republic that attempts might be made some day to change the constitution by "usurpation of power," and "George Washington specifically warned against that method, recommending that changes be made in the constitution only by the method and formula set forth in the constitution itself.

Mr. Roosevelt has been dissatisfied for some time with the present method of amending the constitution and he has succeeded in stirring up discussion among various radical groups including sections of the National League of Women Voters, whereby changes in the federal constitution would be made by an easier method, that is, easier from the standpoint of vested political interests.

Doesn't Take Long
The usual argument that constitutional amendments take too long is not borne out by the facts. Customary illustration given is that of the child labor amendment, but the records show that this was rejected by more than a majority of the state legislatures within a relatively short time after the proposal was first submitted by congress for ratification or rejection. It was several years after this definite rejection that the effort to ratify the child labor amendment was revived, and, even if this second effort were now considered by itself, there are nearly 20 states which have said "no." The trouble with the child labor amendment is in its wording, and, once this is corrected, as it is in the resolution sponsored by Senator Vandenberg and reported recently to the senate, there will be prompt ratification after the two houses of congress approve the proposal to submit the new amendment to the states.

No Idle Time for Handrich During Legislative Session

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Assemblyman Alvin A. Handrich of Manawa, (P), representing Waupaca county, was one of the busiest members of the 1937 legislature, a survey of his record in the official proceedings showed today.

The Waupaca county representative began his term inauspiciously however. The first day of the session he was forced to fight for his seat against a Republican who claimed he was the officially elected assemblyman. Handrich's Progressive colleagues, however, came to the rescue, and since the assembly is the sole judge of the qualifications of its members in such contests, he was seated. The $300 which he claimed the fight entailed, and which he asked the legislature to appropriate to him, was never paid.

Handrich agitated for a state police radio system, which after introduction and weeks of debate, was buried in the finance committee where it died with adjournment. He sponsored a petition to Congress for an appropriation of $50,000,000 for weed eradication, took the floor to speak for a state-wide system of rural fire departments, modeled on the one now functioning in Hortville, promoted a conference of mid-western states on uniform cheese laws, and an investigation by university economists of the profits of the dairy "middleman."

An unwavering supporter of the LaFollette administration, he was primarily interested in farm legislation. One of the bills which he introduced, and which became law, was introduced for the benefit of the FWD farm of Clintonville.

An admirer of Father Coughlin, Handrich also spent considerable time promoting his hobby, reform of the national monetary system. Willing to begin this reform slowly, Handrich proposed that the legislature enact a law making it compulsory to include a course in the constitutional money system in all state high school curricula. This bill, passed by the house, was promptly vetoed by an unsympathetic senate.

Regarded as a prominent farmer, Handrich in the legislature was one of the spokesmen for the Wisconsin Milk Pool and other organizations with which he has been affiliated. In the assembly he was vice chairman of the committee on agriculture, took an active part in drafting that committee's bills.

Chambers to Address Meeting of Beekeepers

Plans for using the $31,000 annual appropriation for bee disease control work which was voted unanimously by the 1937 state legislature will be discussed by E. L. Chambers, state entomologist, before northeastern Wisconsin beekeepers at Shawano lake, Friday, according to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. A number of Outagamie county beekeepers are planning to attend.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Divorce rumors in fulldress spread like blazes. Usually the principals, even if there's no divorce, know where the rumors started. But Neil Hamilton never did, until the other day when the long arm of coincidence reached out.

It was five years ago that rumor had Neil and Elsa spitting. It took them six months of steady denying—and that's hard work in Hollywood—to convince the gossips otherwise. When they returned from England recently, the story was so dead nobody thought of it—not even Neil—until he visited a desert ranch near here and met Neil Hamilton.

The other Neil Hamilton is a ranch worker. Before the actor departed the ranch Neil confided his belief that he'd been the unwitting cause of the rumors in Hollywood. The ranch Hamilton had divorced his wife about that time, and it was then the Hollywood Hamilton started getting inquiries.

"And I know that explains it," says the Hollywood Neil, "because the first inquiries about me and Elsa came from that very region!" Neil and Elsa have been away two years. They are living at the beach because Garbo has rented their house, but they probably will be returning to England in the fall anyway. Unless Neil accepts that African stage tour, in which case he'll polish up his magic—"I'll use that to compensate for any lack of histrionics the customers might notice."

It struck me, seeing Hamilton again, that Robert Taylor might take a few lessons in how an overly handsome actor deals with the fatal curse of beauty. It wasn't so long ago that Hamilton, who actually did pose for collar-ads once, was getting the same unfeeling course of "treatment" at the hands of the local wits. Don't know that anybody ever called Neil "pretty"—you don't when you know him, anyway—but for a long time the collar-ads curse lay on him heavily. Just as it lay, in his time, on the late Wallace Reid.

So I thought I'd learn—from Neil, for Bob—how Neil mastered the situation. But I got nowhere. "Boy," said Neil, with fervent humor, "if I've got any looks I hope they last—so I can keep on making out income tax returns!"

But Neil is the same debonair chap he used to be, and still one of the best story-tellers in these parts. My favorite from his European sojourn is about the ex-Brown Derby headwaiter, exiled in Italy by the immigration authorities, who pines for Hollywood night and day while lording it over a little inn stuck away on the side of an Alp.

That, and the one about daughter Patricia, now six, who has come home with an English accent and nurse. Patricia went decidedly British, says "I say" with the proper elan, and often feels very sad in America—because here there isn't a king to be remembered in her prayers. She's still considering the alternative of a President, but so far isn't convinced that he will fill the bill.

If Gregory Ratoff lost his accent as easily as he loses hats he would not be near so funny. He lost nine on one picture. Grace Dudley, his secretary, is ex-officio hat-hunter. She canvasses all the offices he's visited, retrieves a goodly percentage.

Utility Payment To be Used for Paving Street

Council Votes to Apply Funds to Cost of Project

Neenah — The city council last night voted to apply the $1,750 received recently from the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company to the N. Commercial street paving project to benefit owners from N. Water street to Nicolet boulevard at a regular meeting in city hall.

The money was paid to the city to tear out the old street car rails along the full length of N. Commercial street. Last night's decision gives property owners from N. Water street to Nicolet boulevard the full benefit of the money.

Before assessments on the new pavement are prorated, the sum will be deducted from the total amount of the bid and owners along the street will pay on the total bid less $1,750. Alderman Schmidt made the motion and was unanimously supported by the council.

Seek Bids

Aldermen authorized the city clerk to advertise for bids on additional furniture for the city engineer's office. Alderman Schultz reported that a drawing table, several chairs and two new filing cabinets were necessary to carry on work now in progress at the office.

After a short discussion, Alderman Schultz moved that the city assessor, John Blenker, be retained on the city payroll until the next election because of additional duties making records of new building construction in the last two years. The assessor is usually dropped from the payroll after the board of review adjourns.

A decision on the widening of Stone avenue was laid over until the next meeting. The plans commission recommended that the street be widened and aldermen decided to wait until the next session to consider the cost and the various means of acquiring available property.

Order Repairs

Councilmen instructed the city clerk to write to the Soo line railroad company ordering the company to repair sidewalk plank at the Winnebago avenue crossing. Alderman Loehning reported that the crossing was in need of repair.

The street committee was authorized to draw an ordinance prohibiting parking in the alley at the rear of the Eagles building. Complaints have been received that large trucks were blocking traffic in the narrow alleyway.

The sum of $20 was voted to defray expenses of the Neenah firemen's convention.

Operator's licenses were granted to Roy W. Cox, Louis Nelson and E. A. Rabideau. A drycleaner's license was granted to the Menasha Cleaners and Dyers and four class D beverage licenses were awarded.

Plan Two Games in Loop Play Tonight

Neenah — Two games in the Senior Softball league will be played at Washington and Columbia parks at 6 o'clock this evening. Kruegers will battle the Legion squad at Washington and the Balcony team will meet the Neenah Lions at Columbia park.

City Softball league competition will be resumed Wednesday evening. Commercial Inns will cross bats with the Owls at Washington park. Company I will meet Bergstrom Papers at the Green, and Drahem Sports will battle the Shell Oils at the high school diamond.

Kiwanis Club Group Will See Pictures

Neenah — An educational motion picture will be shown at the luncheon meeting of the Neenah Kiwanis club Wednesday noon at the Valley Inn hotel. The film will be shown following the business session.

Delegates and alternates to the Kiwanis district convention to be held at Green Bay Aug. 8, 9 and 10 were elected at a recent meeting of the board of directors. Delegates are Arthur C. Haslow, Kewanee, Wis., and Norton J. Williams, Neenah. Alternates elected are Otto Steffenhagen, Arthur Weston and Arthur B. Snell.

Neenah Man Attends Sportsmen's Meeting

Neenah—Arthur Haas, Neenah, today left for Madison where he will attend the fish and game regulations meeting of the Wisconsin State Conservation commission as a representative from Winnebago county. Other representatives from the county are Lonni Paulina, Winnebago, and Charles Koch, Oshkosh.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This num- ber also may be called be- fore 7 o'clock in the eve- ning for delivery of pa- pers missed by carriers in Neenah or Menasha.

Elect Another Delegate To Auxiliary Meeting

Neenah—An additional delegate and alternate to represent the auxiliary of Nicolet post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the national encampment at Buffalo were chosen at a regular meeting last night in Eagles hall.

Mrs. Anna Pukall was named as a delegate and Mrs. Marie Blank was chosen as an alternate. Delegates and alternates chosen at a previous meeting were: Mrs. Lillian Campbell and Mrs. Edith Clausen, delegates; and Mrs. Marion Rozelle and Mrs. Lucille Handler, alternates. The encampment will be held from Aug. 29 to Sept. 3 inclusive.

A report of the state encampment held at Wausau in June was read by Mrs. Campbell who was appointed department color bearer and who served as a personal page at the Wausau meet.

Members also discussed meeting places for the auxiliary. An initiation was conducted following the discussion and a social hour with members of the V. F. W. post was conducted. The date for the next meet was not decided.

Oshkosh Joins in Move to Construct River Reservoirs

Delay Payment of Bills for Million Dollar Sewer- age System

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—The council Monday night approved the entrance of Oshkosh into the newly formed Fox and Wolf Improvement and Conservation association, to work for the building of reservoirs on the upper Wolf river, to protect the riparian and city property in case of floods. Mayor C. A. Wiechering was appointed to act for Oshkosh. He was also empowered to select an alderman and he named Alderman Carl Robertson. He stated he did this because of Robertson's interest in conservation work.

Mayor Wiechering mentioned that the present time, because of the danger of pollution of Green Bay and the danger to wild life, water is being taken from Lake Winnebago to aid this lower section. He asserted that with reservoirs, water could now be drawn from the upper Fox and Wolf to replace that taken from Lake Winnebago and maintain its proper level.

He said that because of the advantage, not only to riparian owners and cities, but to big business concerns, it was felt both the government and these industries should bear the cost of installation of the proposed dams and reservoirs.

Bills Delayed

Bills amounting to thousands of dollars and constituting final payment to three contractors on Oshkosh's million dollar sewerage system were held up by the council, until an investigation can be made as to the replacement of streets and sidewalks, said to have been damaged by the contractors. They are J. Rasmussen Co., the H. Hohnsen Co., and the George Zimmerman Co.

Aldermen Otto Lemke, Otto Stoebauer and Veranus Nevins objected when a resolution was brought in to make final payment. They asserted the contractors were bound by contract to replace streets and sidewalks in their previous condition before they could be paid.

Mayor Wiechering, Robert Fraser of Robert Cramer and Sons, sewerage engineers, and Frank Haidinger, president of the board of public works, urged immediate payment of the bills, so as to secure a 10 per cent amount of the contracts, held back by the federal government.

Several aldermen stated that certain sidewalks and streets, supposed to have been replaced, still seemed "roller-coaster" and were a menace to safety. Fraser admitted that some of the streets and sidewalks on streets where sewers have been laid "were in bad shape." However, in some cases, he stated field notes taken before excavation showed they had not been in good shape before.

Appoint Committee

Alderman Stoebauer stated he was in favor of holding up all payment until the streets were in "100 per cent shape." It was finally decided to appoint an investigating committee, to work with the contractors, the property owners, and the board of public works, to determine damage and Mayor Wiechering called a special meeting of the council to decide the claims, for Friday night, July 25.

The 8-hour law for policemen brought forth a resolution authorizing the addition of 7 new men to the Oshkosh force, at an estimated cost for 1937 of $3,500. Mayor Wiechering stated that starting wage for policemen was $110; that they would be appointed to start Aug. 1. The Oshkosh Police and Fire board originally asked for 13 men to be added to the force when the new law went into effect. This was later changed to a request for 10 more men.

It has been ruled by City Attorney Harry E. Meyer that Mayor Wiechering and the council are alone empowered to add men to the police and fire forces.

It was voted to reprint the ordinance books of the police and fire department, so as to inform the new men of the pertinent laws. A resolution by Alderman Joseph Seftenberg provided for printing 300 books at a cost of $108.

Sustain Veto

A veto of Mayor C. A. Wiechering of a resolution submitted by Alderman Veranus E. Nevins, relating to authorizing the Oshkosh Water department to repair and lower water shut-off valves and boxes was sustained.

Mayor Wiechering explained he had vetoed the resolution because he understood the boxes, said to constitute a hazard, were in reality property of private property owners, and not city property.

City Attorney Harry E. Meyer stated he had so ruled so as not to conflict with the contention of the Oshkosh Water department, now involved in litigation with Frank Stein, Oshkosh merchant, about damages to his property from the bursting of water mains.

Hornets Will Meet Polecats on Course

Menasha—Habbie's Hornets will be out to knock off Pete's Polecats, leaders in the Santa Twilight Golf league, in a match that will be played this evening on the Ridge-way Golf club course.

In the other two matches scheduled, Clark's Codfish will meet Van's Vipers and Hyson's Herons will play Bud's Buttercups.

Mayor at Conference With WPA Officials

Menasha—Mayor Walter E. Held conferred with WPA authorities in Green Bay yesterday about the installation of storm sewers and the erection of new street signs in the city. A shipment of 115 new street signs were received a week ago. Carrying black letters on white background, the signs will be placed at all intersections in the city.

FIGURES IN MYSTERIOUS DEATH CASE

Luther Allen left (above), an actor, was held as a material witness at Los Angeles in connection with the death of Mrs. Dorothy May Garland, 31, right, an attorney. Mrs. Garland was taken to a hospital two days after she sustained injuries in a quarrel at a drinking party. Miss Kay Tutwiler right (above), who said she was an actress, was held on suspicion of murder in the mysterious death of Mrs. Garland, one time chief trial deputy in the Los Angeles city attorney's office. Miss Tutwiler, 29, said she had attended a party at which Mrs. Garland was allegedly injured, but denied she had quarreled with the dead woman.

Activities for Children Listed

Tournaments, Softball Games and Dance Are Included

Neenah—Eight tournaments, softball games and a dance are being conducted for children in the various city parks this week.

The dance will be held Wednesday evening at Riverside park pavilion. Dancing will begin at 7:30 and the pavilion will close at 11:30. An orchestra from the high school will provide dance music.

Horseshoe, tennis, croquet, checkers, beanbag box and beanbag board tournaments are being conducted for children in the various age groups at Washington, Doty and Columbia parks.

Marathons Win Again, Defeat Bantas, 3 to 1

Leaders Increase Successive Wins to Ten Last Night

Menasha — The Marathon Paper company, invincible so far this season, lengthened its string of Industrial Softball league victories to 10 by defeating the strong Banta Publishing company team 3-1 last night on the Seventh street diamond.

The paper mill squad scored a run in each of the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings, mainly through their alert base running and steady fielding on the part of the Bantas.

Bantas got their only score in the sixth inning, after the first three men made safe hits. They had other opportunities during the game, but lost them through faulty base running.

Batteries for the Marathon team were Reich and Resch and for Bantas, Asmus and Schmitzer.

In the second game played at the Jefferson park diamond, the Edgewater defeated the Gilbert Paper company 10-8 last evening. Fielders were handicapped by the heavy wind that made safe hits out of fly balls. Beach and S. Omar led the Gilbert team, the former getting a homer and the latter a triple, double, and single in four times at bat.

Batteries for Edgewater were Hyland and Asmus and for Gilberts, Puchowski and Finch.

The Mill Supply will meet Central Paper company on the Seventh street diamond and the Edgewater company will play the Menasha Wooden Ware at Jefferson park in Friday evening's games.

Frank May Fight LaFollettes in Political Field

See Former U. W. Head as Candidate for Governor or Senator

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Glenn Frank, deposed president of the University of Wisconsin, is destined to be an important figure in state affairs for some time to come, it became evident here over the weekend.

A source close to Frank and prominent in the Republican party revealed here that the Republican state central committee and the party's state voluntary committee will meet in Oshkosh early in August to discuss the possibility of drafting Frank as a candidate for office on their ticket, either for the governorship of the United States or the governorship of the United States.

To Plan Room — Later, it was said, Fox River Valley Republicans will meet at Appleton to organize a boom for the Frank candidacy. Many prominent Valley Republicans are anxious to get Frank on their state ticket next year, it was said, in the belief that his prominence, the fact he has many friends in the state, and his ousting from the university presidency by Progressive regents will make him the most available candidate in their anti-LaFollette drive.

Frank's recent announcement that he will remain in Madison as the publisher and editor of a free distribution farm paper with a circulation of two millions, and his contemplated purchase of a palatial home in an exclusive suburb have kept politicians' tongues wagging here. It is generally believed that Frank's decision to remain in Madison means that he at the least conscious of the possibility of entering the state political picture.

The political significance of his decision to remain in Wisconsin is troubling Progressive leaders, who were subjected to much criticism because of the methods employed in the dismissal proceedings. William T. Evjue, editor of the party's mouthpiece, admitted frankly the potentialities of the situation.

Said Evjue: "The political significance of Glenn Frank's new work will be uppermost in the minds of political leaders in Wisconsin. Every farmer in Wisconsin will receive a copy of Rural Progress, free. Each copy will contain an editorial written by Glenn Frank and the remaining contents of the paper will be dictated by Frank. It is obvious that Wisconsin is to be the scene of a bitter duel between Frank and the LaFollettes. The ousting of Frank from the presidency of the University of Wisconsin and the manner in which he was ejected has left a stink and Frank will undoubtedly want to settle old scores."

"Added significance to this phase of the matter is given in the fact the Franks will continue to live in Wisconsin. The question, 'What is

Steel Men See Continued Buying As Summer Ends

Expect Strength in Markets Will Continue in Future

With production snapping back promptly after removal of the labor blockade that limited output since late in May steelmakers give the most positive evidence of belief in continued strength and expectation of renewed buying after the usual summer slackness, says Steel.

In fact, except in bars, strip and some other lines, they find it incumbent to make every effort to give delivery on as much booked tonnage as possible to be in position to meet requirements of consumers when fall buying starts. In sheets and tin plate best efforts to reduce backlogs have not had much effect and reservations by automobile builders for 1938 models are just around the corner, some small lots already having been covered.

Bookings by some leading sellers have been at only 25 to 30 per cent below the June average and considerably better than at this time last year.

Announcement of finished steel and other prices for fourth quarter is expected within a short time and the belief is that prices will be reaffirmed on most products, with minor exceptions.

Active Future — To market observers who believe scrap prices foretell future conditions the present situation forecasts an active fall and winter. The increase in price last week was general at $1 to $2 per ton, dealers finding difficulty in obtaining sufficient tonnages to meet requirements. The rise is fully as rapid as the decline that started in April.

Full operation in plants made idle by labor interference was felt last week and the national operating rate rose 8 points to 82 per cent of capacity, the best level since interruptions started at the end of May.

Resumption gave Cleveland 32 points rise to 79 per cent, Chicago 14 points to 84, Youngstown 2 to 78, Pittsburgh 21 to 88, Wheeling 14 to 91. Eastern Pennsylvania rose 3 points to 66 and Detroit 2 points to 97. New England showed the only decline, 2 points to 78. No change was shown by Birmingham at 96 per cent, Cincinnati at 93, St. Louis at 93 and Buffalo at 88.

Movement of iron ore from the Lake Superior district continues at an accelerating pace. June shipments were 10,107,883 tons, a gain of 64,027 tons over May. For the season to July 1, total shipments were 23,922,294 tons, more than double the 11,677,510 tons in the corresponding period of 1936. Strike conditions in steelworks had no effect on ore shipments and steelmakers are building stocks against heavy demands expected to continue through the winter.

Automobile production last week rose to 115,380 units from the previous week, which was shortened by the holiday, but failed to reach the level of the second previous week. General Motors produced 49,840 cars, Chrysler 25,300 and Ford 26,655.

Imports of steel and iron products in May were considerably under those of April and of May, 1936, reflecting the world situation, in which foreign nations need their products at home. May imports, aside from scrap, were 39,877 gross tons, compared with 56,484 in April and 43,696 in May, 1936. Scrap imports, principally from Canada, were 9,175 tons in May, 11,713 in April and 15,695 in May, 1936. Five months imports, excluding scrap, were 226,056 tons, compared with 212,723 tons in the same period of 1936.

At High Point — Great Britain continues production of steel ingots and pig iron at a rate close to the highest it ever attained. In June 1,106,400 tons of ingots was made, only slightly below the all-time record of 1,109,500 tons made in March. Even at this pace domestic steel supplies are insufficient and arrangements have been made for increasing the tonnage import quota by 200,000 tons for the current year.

Because of the general rise in scrap, steelmaking grades being $1 higher in almost every case, the composite scrap price rose $1, to $18.75, practically the level of the second week in May, when it was $18.79. This is the third consecutive rise, each being at a faster rate. The composite is still $3.33 below the peak, at the beginning of April, when it was $22.08. The iron and steel composite also felt the uplift of the scrap movement, rising 13 cents to $40.04. The finished steel composite is stationary at $61.70.

Waupaca, New London Clash Friday Night in Playoff

Former Team Is Seeking Pitcher; Can't Use Pointer

Polebitzke Ineligible for Game Under League Ruling

NEW LONDON—The first game of the 3-way playoff for the first half championship in the Wolf Valley league will be staged Friday night when Waupaca invades the New London field, it was announced yesterday by Manager Polaski of the Knapstein Brews.

New London, Manawa and Waupaca tied for first place. Manawa declined to be the first to meet the Brews in the playoff. The winner of Friday's game will play Manawa here the following Thursday evening, July 29. The games are scheduled for 8:15.

Waupaca is at a loss for a pitcher for Friday night since the club will be unable to use Polebitzke, the youthful hurler who twice defeated the Brews, because he was not with the team in the closing games of the first half as required by league rules. One eligible pitcher, Jimmy Hoffman of Clintonville, was released by Waupaca near the end of the half and since being taken on by Clintonville, his services for Waupaca undoubtedly will be at a premium. Manager Polaski is undecided on the local lineup.

Next Sunday afternoon the Brews will entertain Neopit here in a regularly scheduled game. The daylight tilt is set for 2 o'clock. Both games will be important to the Brews' pennant aspirations.

Grangers Outthit But Beat Shiocton

Greenville Cops Outgamie County League Game 7 to 4 Sunday

Shiocton — Errors were costly here Sunday when the Shiocton club outthit Greenville Grange in an Outagamie County Baseball league game but dropped the tilt 7 to 4. The home club socked 13 hits but was unable to convert them into runs. Nine errors offset the good day at bat.

Lathrop, on the mound for the Shiocton club, hurled 8-hit ball but the weak support he received chalked a loss against him. Lathrop cracked a triple and Kuzenski socked a double for the only extra base hits in the game. Kuzenski fanned two batters and gave up no bases on balls, while Lathrop struck out six men and walked none.

Stern was the bat star for the losers, socking three hits in five trips and scoring once. R. Schueller got two hits in five times at the plate for the winners and scored a run and Kuzenski hit safely twice in four trips.

Postpone Feature Softball Game in American League

The softball game between Post-Tuttle and Woolen Mills, scheduled for tonight at the Roosevelt school field, will not be played because Eddie Mitchell, Post-Tuttle pitcher, has been ill for several days with tonsillitis. League officials said the game will be played Friday night. The clash between the two teams will go a long way toward determining whether the Woolen Mills is to make a runaway of the American league race or whether it will become a free-for-all.

The teams have split honors so far this season, with the Post-Tuttle taking the first game and the Woolens capturing a win in the second meeting.

A collection for the league's annual banquet will be taken at the game.

Les Belling of Petts got two home runs and other circuit clouts were credited to L. Parker, R. Schmidt and P. Weber. The ninth was the Pettibone squad's best inning, for a 6-run barrage put it back in front with an easy margin.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF BY TULLY

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills Jude Blinship, my old flame, at the start of our stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Strange attacks follow; then we find the body of Michael's mad father below the bluff. Stout, Victorian Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder and nearly finished with sleeping powders. The Skipper, Mike's tall, tweedy, younger aunt, disappears; we find her six hours later, bound in the loft, all but dead. A shot draws us to the room of Higgins, the butler, whom we had strongly suspected shortly before. He is dead, supposedly a suicide.

Chapter 48

I blinked dazedly. That was the question. What earthly reason could there be for Higgins' amazing actions? A contented, gentle old man with the rest of his life mapped out for him as pleasantly as anyone could wish, suddenly goes haywire and kills a girl he has known since her babyhood, a man whom he has spent a good part of his life caring for, and finally attempts to kill the two people who represent all the family and security that he has. It didn't make sense. There could be no question of money as a motive. I happened to know that the entire Farrington fortune had been left in trust for Michael by his grandfather with a request that Higgins be provided for as long as he lived. The only solution seemed to be insanity.

"It's a hopeless mess, William. Can you think what could have ailed him?"

William shook his head. "Must have been plumb nutty, I guess. Didn't seem like that, but he must have been. Funny. You know, when I was working for the Blinships I always thought Higgins was crazy about Miss Judith."

I looked around that bare little room and shivered. Then I walked out—very softly.

My watch said 20 minutes past six. There was little point in trying to hustle people off to bed. We were bound to be routed out again within a very few hours, and I knew from experience that a little sleep is worse than none at all. It was highly doubtful that anyone would be able to sleep anyway.

Snapping on the low lamp on the dresser, I turned out the glaring overhead lights. Gently I closed the door on Higgins' room and made off in the direction of the main house. Cold showers, breakfast and a plan of action were in order.

Michael's room was empty, but in mine the Skipper was still sleeping soundly. Gay was standing at the window.

"Where are the others?" I whispered.

"I'm not sure. They went down the hall somewhere—Miss Farrington's room, I guess. Jim—are you sure it's over?"

"Absolutely sure, Gay. Was the Skipper disturbed at all?"

"No." Her hands were restless. "Whatever possessed him? Does anyone know?"

I drew her into the next room. "I doubt it," I said, "and I doubt if anyone ever will. Now listen, kid. Go take a cold shower and freshen up. William will stir up some breakfast. See that Aunt Martha does the same thing and send Mike along to me. All the majesty of the law is going to be loose around here in a little while and it isn't going to be much fun."

"OK." There was something about the jaunty tilt of the kid's chin that I liked. I stopped her.

"Gay," I said, "there'll be a pretty big fuss over this in the papers. If Mike suddenly gets noble ideas about not soiling the hem of your gown, don't let him get away with it."

She flashed me a grin that sent my spirits soaring.

"Sonny," she said, "if he thinks he can get away from me now, he'll need the militia to help him."

Michael Gets A Shower

Her feet clattered cheerfully down the hall. Hauling out clean clothes, I felt a little better. It was over at last. I was jumping around in the shower when I heard Michael come in. Grabbing a towel, I strode dripping after him.

But if my spirits were up, his were hitting a new, all-time low. He flopped down on the bed.

"Don't be such a damned Pollyanna!" he growled.

My spirits began to slide. "How's M. Farrington?"

"How do you think? Jim, what the devil do you suppose ailed him? Why did he do it? It's—it's—"

"Cut it out, Mike," I said. "We don't know and probably we never will. What difference does it make now? Get into that shower. You're all in."

Michael kicked at the rug. "It makes a lot of difference. Higgins never had a thing wrong with him in his life. And he never did a thing in his life."

Police Pension Ordinance Will Be Considered

Sewage Disposal Plant Matters Also to be Discussed

Kaukauna—Action on the police pension ordinance, much discussed and much revised in the last two months will probably be taken by councilmen when the new ordinance is submitted by the fire and police committee, at the adjourned July meeting of the city council at 8:15 tonight. This is the first meeting to be presided over by the new mayor, Lewis F. Nelson.

A meeting of the board of public works prior to the council gathering will produce some items to be taken up by the council, regarding mostly the sewage disposal plant. As the summer passes the midway mark, action by the board on a swimming pool or on the north side wading pool, construction of which has been prevented by disagreement over the site, will probably put aside in favor of matters pertaining to the new disposal plant.

Application has been made to the PWA for an extension of time for the city to finish work on the plant. It is expected that the board will give some report on the progress being made toward completion of the work, and on how long it will be before operations can start.

Social Items

Kaukauna—The annual picnic of the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion will be held tomorrow afternoon, July 21, at LaFollette park.

There will be entertainment and refreshments in the afternoon, and a covered dish supper will be served at 5:30. Ladies are asked to bring their own dishes, silverware and glasses. Anyone wishing coffee is asked to bring it along in thermos bottles, as only cold drinks will be served at the picnic grounds.

An outdoor picnic luncheon at the Kaukauna Golf club will be held tomorrow noon by the Rotary club instead of their usual meeting at the Hotel Kaukauna. A demonstration of various golf shots will be given by Ernest Killick, pro at the Kaukauna course. In case of rain the meeting will be held at the hotel.

The auditors' report for the Holy Cross Church 1936, Mrs. Catholic Order of Foresters, was submitted at the meeting of the group in Holy Cross auditorium last night.

Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church will meet at the home of the Rev. G. C. Saunderson at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. All members are requested to be present.

A decision to hold a picnic for members and their families on Saturday, July 31, was made at the meeting of Local 1441, Longshoremen's union, at the Odd Fellows' hall, Saturday. The place for the picnic will be announced late this week.

Nic Wins a Bet As He Ruins the First Edible Tomato

Kaukauna—It is a victory to have the first tomatoes in your neighborhood, and a double one to win a bet raising them, but Nic Heindel, 124 Brothers street, enjoyed both victories today.

He and Martin Heindel, 105 Taylor street, his cousin, are both good gardeners. Nic's specialty really is flowers, while Matt used to be the ace grower of grass on the golf club greens before he began taking care of the high school lawns. Last spring they wagered on their ability to make tomatoes grow.

Last night there was double feasting at Nic's house. He ate the first tomato of the season, and then collected his bet from Matt.

Lions to Attend Meet in Chicago

Seven Kaukauna Members Will Go to International Session

Kaukauna—A group of seven members of the Kaukauna Lions club plan to go to Chicago tomorrow to attend the Wisconsin night session of the Lions' International convention now in progress.

Taking with them a supply of Kaukauna Klub cheese, the men plan on having a special Kaukauna contribution to the evening buffet supper, which will be made up mostly of Wisconsin cheese and cheese products.

Men who planned to leave tomorrow to arrive for the evening's celebration are Arthur Mongin, Joseph Sadler, Earl Mollet, Anton Berkers, Cletus Goetzman, H. A. Baier and J. W. Weyenber.

Wisconsin members at the convention will all wear a uniform dress, that of a dark coat and white trousers, at tomorrow night's festivities. The Kaukauna group will meet Mr. and Mrs. Luke Van Lieshout at Chicago. Van Lieshout is the official delegate to the convention.

Start Play Tonight In League 2nd Round

Kaukauna—Play opens in the second half of the Twilight Softball league as the revamped South Side Merchants face the hard slugging Kappell outfit at 6 o'clock tonight at the library grounds.

Both teams finished low in the first half standings, but both have every reason to count themselves contenders for last half bunting.

The Merchants strengthened their roster by taking the cream of the Rennie outfit, which withdrew from the league in favor of the newly organized Ritz team, that will make its first appearance tomorrow. Kappells were always dangerous during the first half, but close score losses to the topnotchers kept them out of the pennant race.

Paul Balgie will be on the mound for Kappells. Sherman Powers for the Merchants.

Two Speeders Fined In Kaukauna Court

Kaukauna—Leslie A. Meyer, Milwaukee, paid a fine of $5 and costs of $4.75 in Justice Abe Goldin's court Monday for speeding. He was arrested Sunday on Main avenue.

Joseph Vander Hyden, route 4, Appleton, also paid a fine of $5 and costs of $4.75 in Justice Goldin's court Monday for speeding. He was arrested Saturday on Crooks avenue.

Basketball League Close on Wednesday

Kaukauna—Tomorrow is the last day boys have to sign up for the new basketball league being formed at the library grounds since baskets were set up last week and a court laid out. The games will be run in junior and senior divisions, just as the baseball leagues have been operated.

Kaukauna—As a special award granted for winter feeding during 1936-37 a shipment of 20 pheasants will be sent to the Kaukauna Conservation club by the state conservation commission sometime this week, according to a letter received yesterday by Matt Verfurth, club president, from the state experimental farms at Poynette.

Anton Ruch, club member, game warden and chairman of the county conservation committee, left for Madison today to attend a 2-day hearing of conservation leaders from the entire state.

Ask Increase in WPA Funds for Kaukauna City

District Leader to Present Request to State Officials

Kaukauna—Action may be taken today on a request made by representatives of the city of Kaukauna yesterday for an increase of WPA funds to the city to Mark Muth, head of the district WPA at Green Bay.

Muth will go to Madison to confer with the state director of the WPA, M. W. Torkelson, and the decision of the state officers on granting additional federal money to Kaukauna for unemployment relief probably will be received by Thursday or Friday.

Mayor Lewis F. Nelson headed the group of Kaukauna men who made the request to Muth yesterday on the grounds that Kaukauna needs increased federal money for public works to give employment to the men who were thrown out of work when the Union Bag mill shut down a month ago. Other men who made the trip are Alderman Jule Mertes, head of the sewer commission; Alderman Gordon Mulholland, head of the poor committee; Joseph Krahn, relief administrator; and Frank M. Charlesworth, city engineer.

While on the trip to Green Bay, the men visited the sewage disposal plant which is being built at De Pere.

Hardball League Is Planned at Kaukauna

Kaukauna—New hardball teams for the experimental leagues that will be tried in the city recreational program were chosen by boys wishing to play, as they gathered with Clifford Kemp, director, at the library grounds yesterday. The new teams started action today.

The experiment in hardball will have senior league teams playing at the Kaukauna ball park twice a week, while junior league teams will meet at the library grounds. If the 2-day weekly hardball schedule works out, softball will be abandoned for the rest of the summer in favor of the new activity.

A complete study of the Bible from Genuites to Revolutions is being taken up by the different classes of the Sunday school. Beginning the first of July the study will require a period of six years to cover.

Kaukauna—Conservationists have already received a shipment of 330 pheasant chicks, three weeks ago more than six weeks old, and then released in nearby game preserves. Club members clipped the wings of the young birds over the weekend, and yesterday they made repairs on the coops, which they keep at the Conkey farm, north of the city.

Rieth will attend a meeting of conservation leaders, who will draw the regulations on fishing, hunting and trapping in Wisconsin for the season of 1937-38. Bag, size and possession limits will be set for fishing, while the restrictions for hunting and trapping will be named.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

in his life but look after my damned family.

Michael has an Irish streak which calls for the noble and highly dramatic. Right then I had no answer for him. I felt rather like a person lost in the woods who knows there is an animal of some sort behind him, but doesn't dare turn around to look. Higgins must have had a motive. But just then I didn't care to turn around and look at it.

"The police," I said, "will have no reason for thinking anything but that the poor old chap lost his mind. You haven't either. Stop trying to dig yourself up a family skeleton. Go take."

"The hell with your shower," Michael exploded. "Who gives a damn what the police think? I've got to know why he did it. I've got."

"To take a shower," I finished grimly. Picking him up clothes and, all, I carted him, struggling, into the bathroom. It was something of a job to hold him, but he was thoroughly doused before he managed to send me crashing on my ear and stalk out. I threw him a towel.

"Take a rubdown," I said. "You go to hell!" But he caught the towel with his bad hand. I grinned and set to work on my own dressing, leaving him to his fuming. The atmosphere was so natural that I could have whooped for joy. I was busy with my tie before he got to the point where he could directly address me.

"Do you suppose there is any way that they could leave the aunts out of all this? If the story about my father hits the headlines, Aunt Martha will never get over it. Foster ought to be able to keep them away from the Skipper for a while anyway."

I said, "I think the best thing to do, Mike, is for me to go into the village on the first boat that gets here. I'll go straight to Foster and leave it all up to him. Then, if he'll let me, I'll push on to the Blinshops'." Ought to be back by seven tomorrow night for the Blinshops'.

Michael was silent for a moment. "That's decent of you, Jim," I climbed into my coat. "Forget it," I said. "Keep your ear cocked for the Skipper. I'll see how the breakfast is coming."

Spotch On the Wall In broad daylight the effect of the electricity in the hall was rather ghastly. The coner we got all the light out and the house nearly normal, the better for everyone concerned. Switching them off as I went, I headed down the hall and into the servants' quarters. At the head of the back stairs I remembered the lights in Higgins' room and in Jude's. I turned back. With my eyes averted from the bed, I made for Higgins' dresser. And then something leapt into my throat.

Directly in front of me at the level of my eyes, was a spotch in the wall plaster, and within that spotch the bullet which had ended Higgins' life. Passing a bewildered hand over my eyes, I looked again. There was no mistake. The bullet was there. Was my memory of the situation blurred? I rushed to the bed and flung back the blanket.

Higgins lay on his back with his arms flung at his sides, the revolver tightly clenched in the right hand. In his right temple was the bullet hole, and in the left, the nasty gash made by the bullet tearing through. But the mark in the plaster was in the wall on his right!

Idea began bouncing through my head. A man falling in a faint or for any reason other than a blow, falls on his face. Unless Higgins could never have landed in that position. Could he have been sitting? I crouched until my head was approximately at the level of a person sitting on the bed. For a bullet to have passed through both sides of the man's head and landed where it had, it must have passed right through the top of his skull. And Higgins' wounds were in his temples.

Much as the idea of the old man's guilt hurt, I wanted the whole thing to be over with. Perhaps, I reasoned frantically, the impact of the bullet spun him around. Perhaps—My next realization sent me staggering against the wall. The revolver was in his right hand and Higgins had been left-handed! Murder number three!

Right then and there my state of mind clarified. All along I had been nearly as much afraid that we would catch the murderer as I was that we wouldn't. But I thought of that tortured face as I had last seen it alive. I took one more look at it as it was then. And I wanted that murderer. If it was Michael, himself, I was going to see him die before my own eyes.

My mind began to work as coldly as if it were dealing with a problem in bridge. Not the Skipper. I had been sitting beside her

Canning of Peas to End Today at Factory

Kaukauna—Canning of peas will be finished today for the 1937 season, one of the heaviest the industry has known, at the Baker Canning company Dundas.

Pressed by the heat wave of a week ago, the 22-day pack was run with only one interruption, when canners took Sunday off after working 20 days straight day and night. The early pack lasted 13 days and the late pack 9.

Warehouses are filled as they have not been in ten years, and the factory has used as much of canning supplies on earlier alone as they might otherwise use on an entire season's work. There was even danger of shortages on cans at some times during the pack.

Radtko Services are Conducted at Marion

Marion—Funeral services for Mrs. Louise Radtko who died July 18, were conducted Monday afternoon from the Salem Evangelical church with burial in the Greenleaf cemetery.

Mrs. Radtko was the former Louise Getz and was born in Germany May 21, 1858. When 4 years of age she came to America with her parents and located at Mayville. At 20 she was married to Otto Radtko and they moved to the town of Grant. Mr. and Mrs. Radtko moved to the village of Marion 19 years ago. On April 5, 1935, Mr. Radtko died, and when the shot was fired. Furthermore, the murderer had put her behind that chest. Higgins must have seen them, to his undoing.

HERE'S HOW EASILY AND QUICKLY POST-CRESCENT CLASSIFIED ADS CAN HELP YOU GET EXTRA VACATION CASH

The More FUNDS You Have The More FUN You Have

How to Write a Good Want Ad

1. Always start your want ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer.
2. Be clear. Readers respond more quickly when given definite information.
3. Make it easy for the prospect to reach you. Always insert your name, address, and if possible, your phone number, in your want ad.
4. To secure the greatest reader attention for your want ad, use consecutive insertions. Three or six time insertions without interruption are much better than occasional appearances.
5. Place yourself in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
6. Want Ads that fail to bring satisfactory results do so, not through any lack of being read, but because they are carelessly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.

It's the white elephants of furniture or articles no longer needed that fill the basement, attic, garage and closets that can bring you money. Others are daily selling everything from used lumber or bricks to golf sticks; from a used Kodak to a Cadillac; from berries to cherries; from used crutches to rabbit hutches; from ponies to hives of bees; from shrubs to stationary tubs; from an outboard motor to a tarpaulin cover; from a gas station to a camp location; from an invalid's chair to used silverware; from a gas stove to a cottage in a grove; from a lunchroom to black loam; from a drummer's outfit to a camp kit; from dogs to hogs; from buildings to playthings.

New York — (P)—Buying forces were in the ascendant in today's stock market, and rails, utilities, and motors, and specialties were given a brisk forward push.

While profit sellers cut down early gains of fractions to 3 or more points in many instances before the close, favorites held most of their morning improvement.

Business optimism, brokers said, was the main market motivator. Chrysler was the star performer of the day, jumping more than 4 points to 110 1/2, a new high for the move.

Transfers were around 1,100,000 shares. The market had to contend with a break in grain futures. Wheat at Chicago tumbled the limit permitted in a day's dealings and finished off 1/4 to 5/8 cents a bushel. Corn tumbled 1/4 to 1/2 cent.

Among popular shares were General Motors, Mack Truck, Motor Products, Montgomery Ward, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, South Railway, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Atlantic Coast Line, North American, Electric Power and Light, International Nickel, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, International Hydro-Electric, Freeport Sulphur, California Packing, Canada Dry, U. S. Pipe and Foundry and Howe Sound.

THOUSANDS ATTEND LAST RITES FOR SENATOR ROBINSON

Scores of the nation's leaders joined thousands of saddened Arkansians in final tribute to the state's illustrious son, Joseph Taylor Robinson, was returned to his native soil. Final requiem for the late majority leader of the Senate was mourned by a torrential rain. The family is shown here in the back ground, Mrs. Robinson heavily veiled, as services in Rose Lawn Memorial Park, on outskirts of Little Rock, Ark.

Wheat Prices in Plunge as Heavy Selling Appears

No Aggressive Buying as
Stop-Loss Orders
Are Executed

Chicago — (P)—Stop-loss selling in a market devoid of any aggressive buying support plunged Chicago wheat prices down more than 5/8 cents a bushel late today. Wheat trade specialists said the collapse of quotations was largely attributable to failure of current buyers to develop general public demand for futures. Assertions were frequent that crop losses both sides of the Canadian border had been over-estimated.

At the close, wheat was 41-51 cents under yesterday's finish, Sept. 121 1/2, Dec. 123 1/2. Corn 1 cent to 5 cents down, Sept. 106 1/2, Dec. 76 1/2. And oats 1-2 1/2 off.

Big Pete's Hit Brings Winners From Behind in Fifth Inning

New London — Big Pete Westphal rescued the Gehrke Brothers Hardware softball team from what seemed a likely defeat at the hands of the Plywoods in an industrial league game under the lights last night when he cracked a home run in the fifth inning to clear the bases of two runners with two men already down. The feat put Gehrkes in the lead, 5 to 2, and the game ended that way.

White, Gehrke pitcher, allowed six walks, two in the first inning which added the Plywoods in scoring their only two runs of the game. He fanned four to Servis' six while the latter walked only one batter. Servis allowed nine hits to White's seven.

Westphal Scores
The favored Gehrke team trailed 2 to 0 until the fourth inning when Westphal crossed the plate after a start on a single. Wolfraht and Barlow reached second and third, respectively, on errors by Krueger and Huxley but they were left there when the third retired. Tip Krohn started the hitting streak in the fifth inning when he pounded a double, followed by Gruentzel with a single. Huzzar walked but made out before he reached second and Duffy Edminster grabbed first base on a fielders choice before Westphal clinched the lead with his homer.

Orin Krohn of the winners starred in a fast double play unassisted in the third inning when he caught a smashing line drive over first base and caught the first runner off the bag.

Wednesday night Bordens are scheduled to meet the Hamilton team unless the Bordens crew is compelled to work overtime on a special milk order. Playoffs for three postponed games are yet to be arranged.

Peruvian Dairy Farms are Clean, Efficient, Club Hears

New London — Modern dairy farms in Peru, furnished with American dairy equipment, surpass even the institutions of this country in cleanliness and efficiency, P. O. Peterson, superintendent of the Waupaca county poor farm, told New London Rotarians yesterday noon in his description of the country as he remembers it on a trip to Peru with a shipment of Wisconsin cattle. The talk concluded a story which was begun before the Rotary club several weeks ago.

Extra precautions are taken in dairy work in Peru because of the susceptibility of cattle of that land to hoof and mouth disease. Barns are scrubbed three times a day and pasteurizing and cooling processes are very efficient. The South American country is fast developing into a progressive dairy land, Peterson declared.

Use Irrigation
Because there is little rain and all crops are raised by irrigation, much care is given to the fertilization and cultivation of crops, particularly corn, the speaker related. The climate permits a continuous crop the year around and water for irrigation is furnished by the snow-capped mountains. There are only two classes of people in Peru, the rich and the poor, the farm superintendent stated. There is no middle class and the poor laborers eke out an unfair existence, he declared.

While rough sea was experienced in the southward journey, the return trip was uneventful over peaceful waters. The party returned by the way of New York and Peterson said he experienced his greatest thrill in passing the Statue of Liberty and getting back to the United States and home.
